ARNOLD DALY BURNED TO DEATH

ACTOR PERISHES AS HE TRIES TO ESCAPE FIRE IN HIS NEW YORK HOME

New York, Jan. 13 (A. P.)—Arnold Daly, actor and theatrical manager, was burned to death in a fire in his apartment on the fourth floor at No. 28 West 51st street today.

The fire, origin of which is not known, swept from the ground floor up the stairway, cutting off his only avenue of escape.

Firemen dashing into the building made several daring rescues, but they seemed unaware of Mr. Daly being in the apartment.

Daly was found on the floor beneath an old fashioned easy chair. Firemen believed that he had found his escape by the stairway cut off and had rushed for a window when he was overcome and burned.

He was discharged about a month ago from a hospital where he had been taken as a result of injuries received when he fell in a night club.

Mr. Daly, who was fifty-one years

SCORES, SMOKE CHOKED, FLEE IN $30,000 BLAZE

Scores fled from downtown buildings today as a three-alarm fire made a smoke-filled inferno of the five-story structure at No. 17 Columbia street, threatening a section of the wholesale district and attracting thousands of noon hour spectators to the vicinity of Bedford, Kingston and Essex streets.

Six firemen were affected seriously by the dense smoke in a long, thrilling battle with the flames, and one, John O'Brien of Ladder 18, was overcome. Damage was estimated at $30,000 by Fire Chief Sennott.

Fifteen persons fled for their lives from the burning building and others rushed into the streets from nearby buildings as smoke poured in upon them. Fire apparatus, halted automobiles and onlookers clogged the streets for blocks.

The crowd saw firemen scale ladders to dizzy heights and, wearing gas masks, smash their way into the upper floors on the Columbia street front. In the rear they penetrated the seething mass of flames by carrying high-pressure hose lines through other buildings and then up fire escapes and ladders to the roof.

A group of girls in a doorway in Columbia street, watching the fire fighting, was drenched when a hose

Mayor Bauer of Lynn Bars Out Chaplin Films

Declaring that Charlie Chaplin, as a moving picture idol, had gone to smash, Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn today issued orders to all theatre managers of the city forbidding them to show the comedian's pictures.

Mayor Bauer said that because of the disclosures growing out of the divorce action he feels that Charlie Chaplin has fallen as a moving picture idol and that his pictures should not be shown in Lynn.

Any theatre manager showing them will forfeit his license, the Mayor warned.

CHAPLIN TO FIGHT

Chicago, Jan. 13 (I.N.S.)—Charlie Chaplin, noted motion picture comedian, bared his soul today, answering charges that he was a faithless husband, indifferent to his children, in connection with the sensational divorce suit of Lita Grey, his eighteen year-old wife.

"I have the most wonderful children in the world," said Chaplin "Don't let anyone tell you that I don't love them. I do."

The film comedian studiously refrained from discussing the charges of immorality levelled at him by Mrs. Chaplin.

"It's the decent thing, the only thing," said Chaplin "I must refuse to speak. When the time comes I'll say all it's right to say, all it's manly and decent to say, but now I cannot talk.

"IT HURTS," HE SAYS.

"I feel terribly about all this. It's cruel. It hurts, it seems to me unnecessary, so unnecessarily cruel."

Chaplin announced he would fight to the end for his children.

"I will fight for them to the end," he said. "Nothing shall stop me. They are such darlings. They are charming. They are lovely."

Chaplin was so obviously shaken that the interview he gave shortly

DISCOVER REFUGE OF FUGITIVE DR. WALSH IN CITY FAR FROM BOSTON

The hiding place of Dr. Thomas E. Walsh, convicted of illegal surgery in connection with the tragic death of Edith Louise Greene, Calvary Cemetery victim, was learned today by the Boston Evening American.

The pseudo physician, who defaulted in Suffolk District Court last December 16, when sentence was to have been imposed upon him, is in another city, far from Boston, in hiding with two men friends.

He has been there, co-occupant of a $110-a-month apartment in a fashionable apartment house, since January 6.

U. S.-MEXICAN CRISIS NEAR ACTUAL BREAK

Mexico City, Jan. 13 (I.N.S.)—A severance of diplomatic relations between the United States and Mexico, which has executed 147 rebels, was regarded as possible today as the reaction to Secretary of State Kellogg's charges that the Soviet government of Russia was operating here and in Central America against the interests of the United States.

The Secretary of State's charges, coming on the heels of President Coolidge's message to Congress, were regarded as a clear declaration of the Coolidge administration's determination to carry out its own policy for the protection of American interests in the region between Panama and the Rio Grande against the alleged activities of Bolshevist interests.

WOMAN IMMIGRATION COMMISSIONER IN HUB

Mrs. Anna C. M. Tillinghast of Cambridge, president of the Cambridge Women's Republican Club, was nominated today by President Coolidge as Commissioner of Immigration of Boston, according to dispatches received from Washington. Mrs. Tillinghast, who is said to be the first woman to hold this important office, will succeed the late Commissioner John B. Johnson. Mrs. Tillinghast is now in Washington, having gone there last Tuesday.

Mrs. Tillinghast

Mrs. Tillinghast, who is the wife of James D. Tillinghast of Cambridge, has long been prominent in Republican women's activities. As chairman of the executive committee of the women's division of the Republican State Committee, she organized classes to prepare chairmen of the women's division throughout the State to lecture to women on the fundamental principles of the Republican party. These classes were conducted by Mrs. Tillinghast at Republican headquarters and did much toward building up the women's division.

As secretary of the Women's Republican Bureau, some time ago, at $75 a week, Mrs. Tillinghast created some excitements when she answered, in a most accomplished manner, the criticism of Secretary Bangs of the State committee to the effect that women in politics were extravagant.

"Extravagant!" answered Mrs. Tillinghast, "do you think I would come down here and work seven days a week if I weren't paid? Why should I work six days a week to elect men to public office, can't Mr. Coolidge paid? Aren't Governor Cox and others paid?" The incident created a furor in the party ranks at the time.

Mrs. Tillinghast has son, James, 26 year old, and a daughter, Ruth, who lives in Providence. Besides her activities in the Republican party, Mrs. Tillinghast is also prominent in the affairs of Cambridge women.

7 MILLIONS FOR NEW POSTOFFICE IN BOSTON

Boston will have a new $7,000,000 postoffice and Federal building if recommendations understood to be contained in the Postoffice and Treasury Department report to Congress next Saturday are adopted.

Washington dispatches today said the report characterizes Boston's present Federal building as "obsolete and antiquated," and declared it should be replaced by a modern structure.

Experts have been studying conditions in each city where new postoffices or Federal buildings have been requested, and the Boston situation is set down in much detail in the report.

BOXING BILL TO BE AIRED

A public hearing on the bill filed by Representative Peter J. MYSTERY AS TO BISHOP.

There are still many conflicting reports as to the whereabouts of Bishop Diaz of the Catholic episcopate, some reports stating that he is at Vera Cruz awaiting deportation, while others state he has been sent to the Guatemalan frontier.

The Catholic episcopate has issued a challenge to President Calles to produce proofs of the governmental allegation that the Catholic church in Mexico is behind the present seditious movements.

Summary execution of all those charged with being rebels is the rule in Mexico City, and the State of Mexico today, 147 having already gone to their deaths by way of the government noose, seven of them just outside this city.

Sacasa Accepts Offer of Mediation by Costa Rica

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—President Jiminez of Costa Rica announced today that Dr. Juan B. Sacasa, head of the Liberal regime in Nicaragua, had accepted his offer to mediate in the struggle between the Liberals and the Conservatives.

Adolfo Diaz, head of the Conservative regime, however, replied that no decision had been reached as regards mediation.

Warns of Peril to U. S. Citizens in Nicaragua

Mexico City, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—The declaration that Secretary of State Kellogg and not the Liberal party of Nicaragua would be responsible for any demonstrations in Nicaragua, in which Nicaraguan or American lives might be lost, was made today by Pedro Zepeda, representative of the Liberal interests here.

Two More Destroyers Ordered to Nicaragua

Washington, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Two more destroyers, the Williamson and Goff, were ordered to Nicaraguan waters today by the Navy Department. Both now are with the scouting fleet off Cuba.

Navy officials said the plan was to have them replace the Smith-Thompson and Osborne, recently sent to Nicaragua. These two, in turn, would take the places of the Williamson and Goff in the scouting fleet.

Doubtless, Rear Admiral Latimer, in command of the squadron in Nicaraguan waters, will keep all four ships as long as he thinks conditions warrant.

40 Killed in 8-Hour Battle of Mexicans

Mexico City, Jan. 13 (I.N.S.).—The complete rout of 300 rebels with a loss of forty dead, at the hands of eighty Federal dragoons, who have recaptured the village of Cocula in Jalisco, was reported to the War Department today.

The battle ranged for 8 hours before the rebels were put to flight and the Federal forces lost only one dead and two wounded.

U. S. Officers Proposed to Train Nicaraguan Guards

Washington, Jan. 13 (I.N.S.).—An explanation was made by the State Department today of a recent proposal to have an American soldier command the Nicaraguan constabulary.

The explanation set forth that the constabulary was a "non-political police force," that President Diaz, recognized by the State Department, asked the department to suggest a man to act as "instructor," and that several names were discussed, including Major George K. Shuler, a retired marine officer.

A Major Carter, American, formerly identified with the Philippine constabulary, has been in charge of the force for some months. His name also was suggested by the State Department.

before leaving for New York was almost incoherent.

"I don't ask for sympathy," he said. "I don't ask for anything except that the public withhold judgment at this time. The terrible thing is the unhappiness all this is occasioning. It is so unnecessary.

"I think the majority of differences is occasioned by misunderstanding. Nine-tenths of all unhappiness is due to misunderstand."

Chaplin maintained stoutly that marriage, even for persons of artistic temperament, was possible and highly to be desired.

DIFFICULTIES IN MARRIAGE.

"Only," he said, "there are such difficulties. Such misunderstandings. I am only a man. Just a human being like others. I have no extraordinary temperament. I think I could be happily married like other men if only people would understand."

Chaplin was not vindictive. He would not discuss the personalities involved in the divorce suit which threatened to force him from the films. He merely stuttered his dazed message in which he pleaded for "understanding."

Chaplin said he was contemplating suit for $500,000 damages against a magazine for an "unauthorized" story of his life.

Just before Chaplin boarded the train he made one final plea for understanding.

"I ask of life nothing more than any man has a right to ask of it," he said, "I want only love and happiness; a wife and home and children like other men."

Act to Banish Film Star From Chaplin Payroll

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Edna Purviance, formerly starred by Charlie Chaplin, today was cast for a role in the marital drama of the multi-millionaire film actor and producer following the disclosure by attorneys for Lita Grey Chaplin that they are investigating the status of the actress on the Chaplin Studio payroll.

NOT WORKING FOR CHAPLIN.

"We have been informed that Miss Purviance has been on the studio payroll at $250 a week for some years," Edward T. McMurray, Mrs. Chaplin's uncle and chief counsel in her action for divorce, declared.

"We are informed that during these years that she has not been working for Chaplin. If these facts are borne out we will recommend to the receivers that this salary be stopped.

"This money should go to the Chaplin children, for whom Chaplin has made no provision, instead of to some actress in France."

Miss Purviance appeared in the leading feminine role in "A Woman of Paris," produced by Chaplin in 1923. Since then she has continued on the Chaplin payroll, it was said at the studio. She is now in France engaged in a picture for a French producer.

WILL NOT INTERFERE.

Receivers, appointed to handle Chaplin's California properties pending the outcome of the divorce suit, have announced that they would not interfere with the activities of technical crews of the studios which are tied up in the divorce proceedings.

However, Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys said the investigation they will ask may include the employment status of other actors.

The receivers also obtained a court order directing United Artists Corporation, distributors for some of Chaplin's pictures and named as a defendant in Mrs. Chaplin's divorce action, to withhold all money due the comedian as well as any amounts due him in the future.

Charlie Chaplin will charge that a conspiracy to get money from him was behind the divorce suit when he makes his answer to Mrs. Chaplin's complaint, it was stated today by persons close to the film comedian. He will fight her claims on the ground that there was a conspiracy to force him to make a huge money settlement.

In her divorce petition, Mrs. Chaplin averred the screen actor had confessed friendship for several motion picture women.

Wife May Demand Entire $16,000,000 Chaplin Estate

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (I.N.S.).—Eighteen-year-old Lita Grey Chaplin, who is seeking a divorce from Charles Chaplin, famous film comedian, may seek to obtain the entire Chaplin estate for herself and her two babies, instead of asking for half of the $16,000,000 fortune as is customary in California divorce settlements, it was learned here today from attorneys representing the young wife.

At the same time it was learned that Mrs. Chaplin's attorneys were prepared to take drastic steps to protect the interests of the film comedian's girl wife.

Mob Marching On U. S. Consulate Is Dispersed

Mexico City, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Guadalajara state an anti-American demonstration before the American consulate there was avoided only by the prompt intervention of Federal authorities.

A band of workers had begun a march toward the consulate when General Ferreira, military commandant of the State of Jalisco, and a force of Federal soldiers dispersed the marchers.

The National Students' Congress here voted to support President Calles and denounce the "northern colossus." Newspapers, particularly El Universal, are charging domination at the behest of "exploiters who have invested money in Mexico."

HAVERHILL SHOE UNION WOULD OUST 'PEACE' HEAD

Haverhill, Jan. 13.—The resignation of Chairman Edwin F. Newdick was chosen a member of the "peace pact" arbitration board three years ago at a salary of $10,000. Haverhill shoe workers on January 1 demanded an increase in wages from 15 to 24 per cent., but the board granted an increase of from 1 to 5 per cent. Members of Local 9 claim Newdick was the honor guest of shoe manufacturers at a convention recently held in Chicago and resent it.

New York, Jan. 13.—Count Ludwig Salm's sensational separation suit against Countess Millicent Rogers Salm, Standard Oil heiress to $40,000,000, has been settled out of court. Thus the curtain drops on one of the most spectacular romances of recent times.

Reliable information was obtained that Count Salm, the Austrian nobleman, who fought so fiercely for his two-year-old son, Peter, will receive $325,000 from his wife's father, Colonel Henry H. Rogers.

The separation action will be dropped forever; a divorce suit in Paris is a later possibility.

In his investigation of the added charges, Adams said information furnished by the companies showing the number of trips and other data was "extremely indefinite."

RAPID TRANSIT TO DORCHESTER IN SEPTEMBER

The rapid transit system to Fields Corner, Dorchester, on the roadbed of the Shawmut branch line under construction at a cost of about $10,000,000, is expected to start operation September 1, H. Ware Barnum, counsel for the Elevated, today told the Legislative committee on street railways.

Plans call for rapid transit facilities to Ashmont and trolley service to Mattapan. About six months after the Fields Corner opening, Barnum said, the Ashmont line should be ready.

He spoke at a hearing on the special report of the division of metropolitan planning dealing with an extension of the Dorchester tunnel to Mattapan square by way of Columbia road and Blue Hill avenue. The division reported against this plan, the estimated cost of which was set at $23,000,000.

Chairman Henry L. Harriman of the division contended that the next extension of rapid transit in Dorchester, when made, should be over the Midland division of the New Haven road. He would make it a six-track road, an improvement, he thought welcome to the road.

But before anything else is done in the Dorchester district, he said, Huntington avenue, Commonwealth avenue and North Cambridge should receive consideration.

CINDERELLA TITLE WON BY BIG GIRL

Uncle Sam has found his Cinderella in Boston. She is Miss Martha Dunder whose five feet and seven inches of grace and beauty won for her the title at the Shoe Style Show held in the Copley-Plaza Hotel under the direction of Eugene Richardson of the Shoe Buyer, assisted by Ned Wayburn, Edric Tayler and George H. Walmsley. Incidentally the judges, who came from all parts of the country, junked the old belief that a Cinderella must be a dainty, fairy-like creature wearing a shoe that one can put in a vest pocket.

In awarding the honor to Miss Dunder, the judges decreed that in their opinion Cinderella must be a big girl of regal bearing. Miss Theresa Hickey, the Boston girl with the perfect foot, was the only one of the small girls left for the final judging, all the rest having been eliminated. She, however, lost out in the final judging, but only because girls of the June type were to reign.

Miss Dunder, tall, dark and handsome, they declared was the ideal Cinderella. The judges explained in awarding the prize that the type favored must stand at least five feet and five inches of slim build and regal bearing. If her feet are well proportioned they need not be tiny. Miss Helen O'Connor received second prize, and Miss Helen Bly, third. Miss Dunder, the first prize winner, will be given six months instruction in the Ned Weyburn School in New York, and will be heralded, although she wears a number five shoe, as the Nation's Cinderella.

ENGAGED UNDER DEATH THREAT, GIRL CHARGES

"And so, after we had filed our intentions to marry, she got a hair-cut and I got a shave and then we went to a show," testified Apostle John Dimitre of Brighton street, West End, today in Municipal Court.

Dimitre, twenty-four years old, well-dressed and dapper, gave his testimony to show the innocence of eighteen-year-old Edith E. Heath who, a couple of days after taking out intentions to marry, had him arrested on a charge of making threats.

The girl alleged that he threatened to kill her if she did not marry him, but she alleged that the threat was made, not after filing the intentions, but on the day before, immediately following a drive away one of her other boy escorts.

Dimitre, on the stand, denied making any threats, but the court ordered him to keep away from the girl and put him under bond of $400 for six months to keep the peace.

The girl, who lives in Chelmsford street, Dorchester, admitted that she had been friendly with Dimitre for three years and said that during that time she had been engaged to Donald Voss Holt, 21, of Dorchester, "for only a few days."

She testified that when she was going home from work one day, Dimitre caught her by the arm, drove away young Holt, who was with her, and then threatened to kill her if she would not marry him.

In fear, she met him next day and they went to City Hall and took out intentions. Afterwards, she said, she told her mother, and the mother had Dimitre arrested.

Young Holt, testifying, said he was the companion driven away from the girl by Dimitre. He made no resistance against Dimitre's alleged taking of Edith.

Dimitre's story differed essentially from those of the others. He gave as his version that he had an appointment with Edith that night, but she did not keep it.

Afterwards he met her with Holt and, going up to the couple, remind ed her that he had been keeping company with her for three years, but wanted now to know where he stood. Then he asked Holt if he would not step aside during the talk with the girl.

According to Dimitre, the girl told him that she wanted him and not Holt would even marry him. The arrangement to meet and go to City Hall was then made, Dimitre testified.

He got into prominence in New York as the producer of plays of George Bernard Shaw, making his first stage appearance in 1892 with Fanny Rice in "The Holly Tree."

He subsequently went on tour with "Married, Not Mated" and "La Belle Marie." Other plays in which he was seen outside of New York were "Aristocracy" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me."

He made his New York debut as Chambers in "Pudd'nhead Wilson" at the Herald Square Theatre in 1893. He was first seen on a London stage in 1898, when he played Henry Mackintosh in "Too Much Johnson."

From then on he appeared in numerous plays, playing in America and abroad. He also turned his hand to literary work, publishing "The Dominant Male" in 1921.

Mr. Daly was last seen on the legitimate stage in "Juarez and Maximilian," last November. When that play was withdrawn he entered vaudeville and was appearing on the Keith circuit at the time of his death.

More than 2,000 contributors, mainly alumni, have contributed gifts totaling $1,000,000 to the Harvard Law School's $5,000,000 endowment fund, it was announced today by Wilson M. Powell national chairman of the fund, in New York.

Gifts have been made by members of 59 classes, starting with the class of 1855 and running up through the class of 1926.

The class of 1882 has the highest average, their five gifts averaging $10,302 per gift. The class of 1904 has the highest total so far 40 members having contributed $53,951.

$75,000 ASKED FOR TO ADVERTISE BAY STATE

A State publicity board of three unpaid members, with a $75,000 appropriation for advertising the advantages, attractions and resources of Massachusetts, is demanded in a bill filed today at the State House for the Massachusetts State Chamber of Commerce.

The bill provides that the board may arrange with boards of other New England States to bring about co-ordination and mutual benefits, in line with the policies of the New England Council. "The State Chamber of Commerce has been assured strong support for this measure," Edward G. Stacy, general secretary of the State Chamber, said today.

HIDING PLACE OF DR. WALSH DISCOVERED

The automobile in which three men traveled, in easy stages, from Boston, is in a garage nearby, and still has its 1926 Massachusetts license plates. This automobile has not been re-registered in Massachusetts for the current year.

In the fashionable apartment the three men have been living for the past week and more and a lease for a year has been signed.

They have in their service a messenger, a former patient of the doctor, and it was partially through tracing his movements that the physician's whereabouts were located.

None of the other occupants of the apartment house and the proprietors of the garage in which the car is housed have any inkling of the identities of the three men.

Dr. Walsh and his companions left Boston in December and rode by automobile to Worcester. They spent three or four days in a private house in that city, then continued their journey to the westward.

WIFE FREE LOVE ADVOCATE, SAYS BISHOP'S SON

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 12 (A.P.).—John C. Candler, son of Bishop Warren A. Candler, senior bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, has filed suit in De Kalb County against his estranged wife, Mrs. Henrietta Hammond Candler, seeking a divorce.

The suit alleges that the "defendant professed to be a believer in what is commonly known as free love and that in furtherance of this alleged belief she disregarded all social amenities or standards of decency and persisted in carrying on flirtations with other men to such an extent as to cause publicity, great humiliation, and when he undertook to remonstrate she would become enraged and tell him it was her purpose and intent to do anything she saw fit."

Mr. Candler asks for the custody of their two children, Adelaide Martin, sixteen, and Florrie George, thirteen. The couple were married in April, 1910, at Baltimore and separated in November, 1925.

Mrs. Candler and the children reside in Baltimore, her former home.

Mayor Leon M. Conwell of Somerville will send a communication to the Board of Aldermen tonight asking an appropriation of $200 as a reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the man riding in the automobile which ran down and killed Mrs. Catherine Conole of Caldwell avenue, Somerville, a week ago.

Attention, Tall Men! Longer Beds and Higher Awnings!

Concord, N. H., Jan. 13 (A.P.)—An act to "prevent discrimination against tall men" was filed in the House of Representatives today by Representative Charles W. Hobbs of Pelham.

The bill provides that every hotel of 25 beds or more shall have at least one full-sized bed four feet six inches wide and seven feet long to accommodate guests six feet three inches tall.

The measure also provides that no canopy or awning over a sidewalk shall be less than seven feet from the ground.

The chairman said that as far as he can ascertain, he is of the opinion that a levy of three cents a trip ought to cover the insurance costs operators.

"If the companies carried insurance previously there should be no increased cost," he added. "Isn't it amazing that the cities, granting licenses to these taxicabs to operate on the highways, allowed them to go without some provisions for the payment of damages to persons injured?

"The fee of ten cents a trip, it seems to me, not only covers the cost but gives the companies additional profit. It is an attempt to pass along to the customer in an offensive way the question of liability insurance."

SEIZE BALLOTS IN U. S. SENATE VARE PROBE

Washington, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Immediate seizure of the ballots cast in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties in the Pennsylvania senatorial election last November was decided upon today by the Senate campaign funds committee.

Agents of the committee will take over also the ballots in 139 precincts in rural districts in which William S. Vare, successful Republican candidate, told the committee he had received a total of only 480 votes, or less than four votes to the precinct.

This will be the first step in the Senate investigation of charges of wholesale fraud in registration and voting made in the petition of contest against the seating of Vare brought by William B. Wilson, the Democratic candidate.

NEW ENGLAND COUNCIL OPENS RESEARCH BUREAU

With the removal of the offices of the New England Council to the Statler building, announcement is made today of the inauguration of a research bureau with headquarters in the executive offices of the council. 8 JURORS FOR NORRIS TRIAL PICKED

Austin, Tex., Jan. 13 (I.N.S.)—Eight jurymen had been accepted for the trial of Rev. J. Frank Norris of Fort Worth, charged with murdering D. E. Chipps, lumberman, when court reconvened today.

A delay was threatened because of the attack on Mac A. Galbreath, brother of C. A. Galbreath, one of the eight jurymen. He was attacked and beaten into unconsciousness by two highwaymen.

Should his condition become critical, as is possible, according to physicians, the brother on the Norris jury may be called to the bed side.

When court opened the State had used eight of its fifteen challenges, while the defense had expended only four. There still remained more than 100 of the panel of 200, from which it was hoped the other four jurymen could be selected today.

SALM TO GET $325,000 AND DROP SUIT

that adjournment, as it now appears, was virtual abandonment. As a preliminary to the final public announcement of the suit's discontinuance, counsel for the count and countess again adjourned the renewed hearing until March 21.

BALKS OTHER SUITS.

In arranging for the adjournment, the opposing attorneys, Universal Service definitely learned, told Justice Levy that the suit had been settled, and that reconciliation was not the basis of settlement.

Count Salm, who is moved to fury at the implication of "gold digging," will be saved from this stigma by the provisions of the financial settlement of $325,000.

The money, to be paid in several payments, will take the form of abating Count Salm's projected suits against Colonel Henry H. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers, parents of his wife, for alleged alienation of affections.

But Count Salm, the man who chose to lose $12,000 a year, offered to him by Rogers to stay away from America and his wife, rather than lose his cherished son, will not be content, it is understood, with a mere financial settlement, no matter how liberal.

Peter, the bright-eyed son of the Count and Countess, whom both adore, was the center around which the separation suit of the Count pivoted.

Hence, it has been stated, the Austrian nobleman has insisted on the added provision giving him partial custody of his beloved son. Precisely how often Count Salm will be allowed to visit his son and where has not yet been determined.

LETTERS A FACTOR.

When the mysterious adjournment suddenly terminated the separation trial last December gossip immediately inquired why. Rumors that the Count, educated to no occupation but leisure, was considering settlements ranging from $500,000 to $1,000,000 were rife.

The suit was adjourned, however, in the course of the reading of several letters which Countess Salm had written to her mother following her separation from her husband. These letters referred to the Count, her husband, in endearing terms.

It is felt that the reason for the adjournment, and the reason for this last adjournment, and the settlement, is that one letter, at least, remained unread—a letter which Colonel Henry H. Rogers most vehemently did not want read.

In this letter, according to report, Countess Salm expressed her love for her husband and wrote that she was coming to New York to get all the money from her father that she could and then begged him to join her again in Paris.

U. S. ISOLATION BLAMED FOR ALIEN ABUSE

"After four years of effort to straighten out South American affairs we have failed and war is, if anything, more likely than before," said Sarah Wambaugh today at the Foreign Affairs School of Massachusetts League of Women Voters in Radcliffe College. The speaker was technical advisor to the Peruvian government during the Tacna-Africa plebiscite.

She deplored our present isolation. "The isolationists have already done our country infinite harm," she said. "Unfriendliness to us in Europe because of the debts is, I think, somewhat artificial, but it is our isolation which has both helped to inspire this campaign of abuse of us, and to make it possible.

"We have harmed ourselves in South America as well. Our policy there has always been peace and the protection of American interests. We have defeated both purposes. For six years we have insisted that all Latin American disputes shall be settled on this continent and have ourselves offered, in 1922, to solve the most bitter one, that of Tacna-Africa. The failure of our efforts is a serious blow, not only to our diplomatic prestige, but to our moral prestige as well."

'FORGETTERY' CITED IN MRS. DE JONY CASE

Admission that he received $1,000 as a "free will offering" from Mrs. Ferdinand DeJony, wife of a Hungarian nobleman, was made in Norfolk Probate Court today by Walter N. Weston, lecturer on spiritualistic topics at the Home of Truth, a religious cult, at 11 Newbury street.

At one point in cross-examination, Weston was shown a book entitled "Consciousness." He said he was the author and he was asked to refer to a paragraph on Page 11 which read:

"One of the very best forms of denial is to forget injuries, disappointments, mistakes, disagreements and the whole brood of negatives pertaining to the past. There is no past.) One of the most useful of accomplishments is the acquisition of a good forgettery."

ON HUSBAND'S PETITION.

Weston was recalled to the witness stand at the continued hearing on the petition of Mrs. DeJony's husband for appointment of a conservator for his wife on the ground that she is giving away her money to the religious cult and to Weston.

Under cross-examination, Weston admitted he had received in addition to the "free will offering" more than $12,000 from Mrs. De Jony, which he invested in a quarry at Vinal Haven, Me.

He admitted buying the quarry in his own name on the money advanced by Mrs. De Jony. "Later it was transferred to the Standish Company, of which Mrs. De Jony and I are directors," he said.

FOILED BY WIFE.

Q—Is there a clear title to the property? A.—No. I was unable to obtain it because my wife would not sign when the transfer was made. It is still an imperfect title.

Q—Did you write any letters to Mrs. De Jony? A.—Yes.

Q—How often? A.—About twice a week.

A.—And that is more often than you ever wrote to your wife? A.—Yes.

Weston admitted he made suggestions to Mrs. De Jony that concerned her domestic affairs. "She made her own decisions," he added.

He denied he had sought to control Mrs. De Jony's estate or that he received a letter from her husband demanding that he discontinue writing letters to her.

New Hampshire Has Had 32.2 Inches of Snow

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 13 (Universal).—Winter has contributed 32.2 inches of snow in New Hampshire since January 1 and, according to the Weather Bureau, the record total for any Winter in the last 56 years, that of 96.3 inches in 1926, may be reached when the last storm is over.

In sections of the northern part of the State four feet and more of snow have fallen, although no official measurement has been taken.

FILE HUB BILL FOR JUNIOR COLLEGES

A bill calling for establishment of a junior college in Boston was filed at the State House today by Senator William I. Hennessey of Dorchester, acting on the request of the Boston School Committee.

The idea is patterned after the widespread movement of educational experts in the West. It is designed to extend the work of the high school for two years in a trade course. This would enable the pupil to get a college course for two years. Such institutions in the West are supported by tax assessment.

In Roxbury, the Roxbury Clerical High School for Girls takes graduates from high schools throughout the city for two years. The graduates are successful in obtaining positions.

Boys are provided for at the High School of Commerce. These two schools, if the bill passes, would be called junior colleges. There would be little or no money spent in new buildings, but the graduates would take a better standing as junior college graduates.

Superintendent of Schools Jeremiah E. Burke said the School Committee was not committed to the proposition, but thought this an opportune time to present the bill.

FORD WILL GIVE 'OLD' DANCE AT WAYSIDE INN

Pages of history will be turned back on the evening of January 21 when Henry Ford, motor magnate will assume the role of "mine host" at historic Wayside Inn, South Sudbury.

The event will be an old-fashioned dinner party and dance. Costumes of the days when Sudbury was an outpost will be worn by the fifty men and women guests.

Weather permitting, they will come from miles around in sleighs and pungs, just as the early inhabitants used to come to the old inn of a Winter's evening.

The Ford Orchestra will furnish music for the dancing. Only old-fashioned dances will be in order.

Every effort was made to keep news of the coming affair from becoming public, but an enterprising reporter "dug up" the "story" today.

GEN. BOOTH IS GUEST IN HUB

Gen. Ballington Booth, head of the Volunteers of America, arrived in Boston today. He will address the Square and Compass Club tonight. While in Boston he will complete arrangements for a committee of prominent persons to act as advisory heads in this center for the Volunteers' work.

The nucleus of the committee has been formed. It includes former Mayor James M. Curley, Mrs. David M. Little, Seymour B. Willett, Emma Fall Scofield, Dr. A. L. Nissen and H. M. Bickford. Gen. Booth will also look over a building which may meet the requirements of his organization's work in this city.

The Howard street headquarters have been crowded.

"Boston is like a lady's dress in the old days," said Gen. Booth today. "It is difficult to understand the hooks and eyes. I cannot find my way around. I like the people here and have received wonderful treatment on my visits to your city.

"Yes, I'm busy," he said in answer to a question, "I am so busy I feel as though I never knew where I am going next."

WOMAN CLAIMS NOONAN GOT HER SAVINGS

Thousands of dollars were obtained by Henry T. Noonan of Somerville by placing mortgages on property he had induced a trusting woman to give him charge over, according to testimony today in Superior Court at East Cambridge, where Noonan is on trial for larceny.

His alleged victim is Mrs. Annie Quinn Stirling of Somerville, who came to this country 13 years ago as a poor Irish immigrant and by industry and thrift brought valuable real estate before her marriage in 1921.

Attorney Abraham Zintz, a real estate expert, testified to placing seven different mortgages for Noonan, believing the defendent was the legitimate owner. Proceeds from these amounted to approximately $10,000, according to his figures.

Zintz said he finally discovered Mrs. Stirling was the owner, according to her claim, and told Noonan of this.

"She fainted in my office when she heard Noonan's reply," testified the attorney. "Noonan said, 'She's a d—— liar. I'll take care of her.'"

Attorney William F. McGowan said Noonan told him that he placed the mortgage to protect Mrs. Stirling and would pay the proceeds to her.

Through an error, the name of the defendant was at first erroneously reported as Hogan, instead of Noonan. There was no Henry Hogan connected with the alleged acts.

Mrs. Stirling's claim is she and her husband agreed to separate, he to have their automobile and she to have the real estate. She said they went to Noonan and, thinking him a lawyer, agreed to his alleged plan to deed the property to him temporarily "in order to make the transfer legal."

ONE FIREMAN OVERCOME IN 3-ALARM DOWNTOWN FIRE

burst. Until men rushed and opened the door for their escape inward they were unable to dodge the stream.

On arriving at the scene, fire apparatus coming in through Bedford street had to wait until prancing horses attached to heavy drays were led out.

Finding it impossible to get up through the lower floors, firemen shot up tower ladders and, suspended from these by ropes, swung back and forth against the windows of the third floor until they had smashed in a means of entrance.

CUT OFF BY FLYING GLASS.

Battling doggedly from tower ladders and extension ladders as the flames continued spreading, the firefighters, their faces cruelly lacerated from jagged pieces of flying window glass, attacked the blaze in relays. Several firemen reeled and were helped down by others.

Police reserves from all downtown stations kept the huge crowd in check and diverted traffic by roundabout routes to prevent a serious tie-up of automobiles in the district.

Fire Chief Sennott and several district chiefs mounted ladders and took active part in combating the stubborn fire, which blazed for more than two hours.

The building is largely occupied by furniture storerooms and shipping departments of the Macey-Morris Company. Other concerns are the Guaranty Leather Company, Berstein & Kramer Company and Joseph Simberg Corrugated Paper Box Company.

The fire is believed to have started on the third floor, according to Chief Sennott, but the cause is undetermined. Employes said that a hot electric light bulb, which was being replaced, dropped into a heap of excelsior, but fire department officials said this could not be verified.

With amazing rapidity the flames spread through the third floor, then into the fourth and fifth and through the roof. Traffic Officer Martinello at Bedford and Kingston streets sounded the alarm.

$100,000 Fire Destroys Plant of Dorothy Gordon

Fire today destroyed the principal business plant of Dorothy Gordon, wealthy heiress, for whose guardianship a long and bitter battle was waged in the courts while she was a patient in McLean Hospital for the Insane, Waverley.

Flames, sweeping through the five-story brick structure at Albany and Wareham streets, South End, caused more than $100,000 damage in the Gordon Supply Company, occupying the second, third and fourth floors; Baldwin Shoe Corporation on the top floor and several small concerns on the ground floor.

Three alarms were rapidly sounded after Patrolman Raymond Purington discovered flames leaping out of second-story windows. In a few minutes the fire broke through the roof and the building was doomed before firemen arrived.

The fire probably saved the life of the janitor, George Sakers, 60, of No. 846 Shawmut avenue. Before it started, he was overcome by heat in the basement. The flames did not touch the basement, but Purington discovered Sakers unconscious and revived him.

In the main office of the Gordon Supply Company, a laundry concern, the fire started according to the police. The cause was undetermined. The building is said to be owned by Israel Catron.

Intense heat kept firemen from penetrating the blazing building with hose lines and the fire was chiefly fought with water towers.

COMMISSIONER ON SCENE

Fire Commissioner Eugene C. Hultman, wearing his new white helmet for the first time, was at the scene early after a strenuous night at the three Roxbury apartment house fires.

The ground floor was occupied by a number of concerns, including the P. H. Montys Battery Service, the Boston Print Ink Company, Codman & Shurtleffe, surgical instruments; C. E. Rogers Brass Foundry and the Superior Battery Company.

The Gordon Supply Company is the principal property of Dorothy Gordon, now living at an address known only to her lawyers and guardian where she is recovering from her illness.

According to Fire Chief Daniel F Sennott, the sprinkler system failed to function

Seek Warrants for Two as Roxbury Firebugs

Warrants charging arson against Harry De Voe, janitor, and Gerdan Sheetham of Ivory street, Cambridge, former assistant janitor, of the three Roxbury apartment houses where it is charged fires were set, will be sought tomorrow in Roxbury Court.

This was declared late today by Thomas A. Thompson, attached to the State fire marshal's office, after Thompson and another attache had had questioned De Voe and Sheetham for two hours at the Dudley street police station.

Thompson stated that Sheetham admitted having had a quarrel with De Voe, his former "boss," a week ago and admitted having made threats against the head janitor for being discharged.

De Voe was rescued by a squad of police from a crowd that was closing in on him following the disastrous fires.

De Voe was janitor in one of the apartment houses, that at No. 105 Townsend street, target for the flames last night, and he also had charge of the apartment house adjoining, which was practically destroyed by another suspicious fire last Friday.

CAUGHT IN BASEMENTS.

Property damage from the three fires reached $to,000; 40 persons were made homeless, and several were only rescued with difficulty, particularly one bed-ridden aged woman. The second fire called for two alarms, and the third for three.

The fires were all close together and in each case the flames had their origin in the basement.

Hardly had the firemen begun their fight against the flames at the Townsend street house when two alarms were sounded for another fire at No. 286 Walnut avenue, to be quickly followed by the most disastrous blaze of all at Nos. 103-111 Waumbeck street.

In the Waumbeck street house were six apartments, all the tenants being forced to flee, and several frightened children being carried to safety.

Here Engineman Thomas Reardon was overcome by smoke, carried down a ladder by his mates, treated, and sent to his home. Several other firemen were badly cut by flying glass, but remained on the job. Here Chief Sennott estimated the loss at $20,000, as the fire, again starting in the basement, had practically eaten away the whole interior of the building.

It was at this blaze that De Voe was found.

The occupants at No. 286 Walnut avenue were Morris Schlossberg, Rose Manus, William Goldblat, Gertrude Mansfield, Harry Folchunsick and Samuel Shocker. The owners are Abraham Glass and Jacob Goldstein of No. 864 Cross street, Malden.

Mother Dares Death to Rescue Her Son

Springfield, Jan. 13.—Refusing to leave her ten-year-old son, crippled with a broken leg, Mrs. Mary Gavin nearly sacrificed her life for mother love early today when fire raced through the eight-apartment block at No. 19 Warner street.

All eight families, comprising approximately forty persons, escaped the flames, but few saved more than the flimsy night clothing they wore when flames ate upward and thick rolls of smoke choked the structure.

Only the arrival of the firemen, groping up through the smoke to the third floor, saved Mrs. Gavin and ten-year-old Leon, whom she could not carry because of his injury and his weight.

Another dramatic incident of the fire occurred when Mrs. James Gates, one of the tenants remembered she had left behind a box containing $1,600.

She made a dash to re-enter the burning building, but firemen overtook and frustrated her, despite her screams and struggles.

The fire damage will reach at least $40,000, it is estimated.

TAXES? NO, NO, BUT THEY WEAR GOOD FUR COATS!

That women in costly fur coats and owners of automobiles are claiming exemption from taxation of real estate and personal property under $1,000 was charged today by James J. Casey of Cambridge, president of the Massachusetts Association of Assessors

Casey was speaking in favor of eliminating the exemption at a hearing before the legislative committee on taxation.

"In my city," he said, "many of the teachers, who evidently met to discuss it, are claiming exemption, as are many of the nurses at the municipal hospitals.

"They come in costly fur coats, which are exempt as wearing apparel and claim this little exemption, though they are perfectly able to pay."

DRUGGISTS FLAY RUM BILL

Washington, Jan. 13 (A.P.)—The public and retail druggists would be left "to the mercy of the bootleg trust" by enactment of the Treasury bill to authorize manufacture by a corporation of medicinal whiskey, Emerne Brokmeyer, representative of the National Retail Druggist Association, testified today before the House Ways and Means Committee.

There is nothing in the bill, he declared, to prevent the "richest bootleggers" from coming into possession of the corporation's stock and nothing to prevent adulteration and misbranding of whiskey. It would break down the present distribution system, delay delivery to the drug stores and would injure the druggists by eliminating competition in the sale of whiskey, he said.

FEAR RAIN WILL FLOOD STREETS

More weather trouble is in store for Boston and New England if the guess of the weather man does not go amiss. His official forecast for Boston and vicinity is:—

Cloudy with rain or possibly snow beginning late tonight or Friday. Warmer tonight with increasing southerly winds.

Thousands of commuters, transportation officials and street department heads all over New England are hoping that it will not rain. If it does, they fear, the heavy snowfall turning to slush will raise havoc with rail lines and highways. The latter, piled high with drifted snow and buried gutters, they point out, would become almost impassable.

There was nothing of the "show me" type to the sudden warm wave hailing from Southern Missouri.

BOXER WHO DIED AFTER BOUT NOT REGISTERED

Louis Brady, twenty-four, of Morton street, North Attleboro, who died in the Shurtleff Hospital there after a boxing exhibition last night, was not a registered boxer, according to an announcement made today by the Massachusetts Boxing Board. The investigator also found that the affair was illegal as no permit for boxing was issued to the Moose Club. Just what action the boxing board will take is undecided.

TODAY

Mexico, visiting Wall street yesterday, said: "If Calles had attacked the Church only, he might have succeeded. If he had attacked American owners of Mexican oil wells only, he might have got away with that. But a man attacking religion and oil at the same time, is going to have trouble."

YOUNG GENTLEMEN, it pays to save. Even a little may be worth while.

Mr. Cousens, asked to pay nine million dollars more income tax, had saved $900 when he met Ford. That gave him his chance. By and by he sold his interest to Ford for thirty million dollars. If he hadn't saved the nine hundred dollars, he could not have had the government suing him for nine million dollars.

Moral: Save something, if only a little.

SECRETARY KELLOGG says the red and wicked Communist Bolsheviki are aiming at Latin-America. They control and force the Nicaragua-Mexico policy, trying to destroy what they call our United States capitalistic imperialism.

They must be hopeful, wicked Bolsheviki, for American capitalistic imperialism has only started. And as for Latin-Americans, whoever thinks Communism, with its theory of dividing, will appeal to them does not know them.

When agents of Moscow tell Latin-America to divide wealth, they will hear a loud moaning reaching from the warm Rio Grande to freezing Terra Del Fuego.

THE BRITISH, that send flying men with bombs and shins with heavy guns wherever British money or life is menaced, display increasing respect for President Coolidge, now that he tells our neighbors what they may and may not do.

The London Times thinks we are modifying the Monroe Doctrine, claiming special rights of intervention, etc. Quite correct, we are.

THE GIORNALE D'ITALIA says, "United States policy may be called one of authority and force," and adds, "When necessary there are cannon behind American dollars." Also correct. Dollars without cannon behind them are feeble things, like flabby jelly fish. It is the cannon that transforms flabby dollars into vertebrate dollars.

TWELVE CHAIN STORE concerns last year did a combined business of $660,000,000, more than fifty millions average. Chain stores can make the most economical, complete use of advertising. Put your stores where people reach them easily, then advertise them. That means success.

Merchants with great institutions in big cities will before long be establishing branches in the same cities. Make a note of this prediction.

A NUMBER of English villages are swept with a smallpox epidemic such as has not been seen in nearly half a century, 55 cases in one place, 15 in another. Like some Americans, many English people have decided that "vaccination is all nonsense." It is better than genuine smallpox, however, and fortunately a few smallpox cases always provide a wonderful cure for the anti-vaccination nonsense.

FUNDAMENTALISTS in New York seek to raise $400,000, the richest city's quota for the $5,000,000 William J. Bryan Memorial University at Dayton, Tenn.

Mr. Bryan, a powerful, sincere man, deserves a memorial. He ought to have something better than an institution intended to check and rebuke scientific research.

GERMANY IS taking steps "to prevent influx of foreign gold." Who would have thought that not long ago, when you could buy a trillion, which means one million million, marks for less than thirty cents? The last shall be first, and he that loseth a war wins it.

Retired Judge Dead at 86

Middletown, Ct., Jan. 13 (I.N.S.)—Judge Silas A. Robinson, retired Supreme Court Justice, died at his home here today at the age of eighty-six, following a sudden stroke. Judge Robinson held an honorary degree of LL.D. from Wesleyan. He leaves one son and two daughters.

PRINCE TO BUILD WAR MEMORIAL

The United States has accepted the offer of Frederick H. Prince, Boston financier, to erect on Fort Meyer military reservation opposite Arlington Cemetery, a memorial church dedicated to Americans who fought in the Lafayette Escadrille during the World War.

Announcement to this effect was made today by Ralph Adams Cram, noted Boston architect, who has been chosen to design the edifice.

Mr. Prince's son, Norman was killed in action with the Escadrille, during the war and it is in memory of him that the banker offered the memorial. Negotiations were conducted through the War Department by Attorney Guy Currier of Boston, for Mr. Prince.

The memorial is to cost about $500,000 and while it will not be a copy of a French chapel it will embody French precedents. It will be used by the Fort Meyer garrison.

'MA' DEMANDS 'HOWLERS' PROVE IT

Austin, Tex., Jan. 13 (A.P.)—Branding her critics "a crowd of howlers" and challenging them to prove any of her clemency acts were unjustified, Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson has increased her pardon and parole total to the new State record of 3,205, while criminal courts in two counties today had postponed criminal dockets until the expiration of her term Jan. 18.

With counsel of friends of convicts beseiging her office with petitions for clemency, Gov. Ferguson defied her critics and in turn made accusations of irregularities in court procedure. Sh then continued signing clemency orders, the day's summary showing twenty-seven full pardons and only conditional pardon. This was slightly less than the average maintained for several days.

One of the last full pardons signed was for Emmet Vestal, who was convicted of killing a man at Dallas in 1917, but escaped from a hospital for the insane and married two women, one of whom bore him six children. Both women recently appeared to plead that his life be spared.

Sunday will be the seventh anniversary of national prohibition, and to celebrate this event in Boston, Wayne B. Wheeler will address an audience at 3 o'clock at Tremont Temple.

PLAN TO REPEAL U. S. DRY LAWS

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 13 (A.P.)—Opponents of prohibition in the New York Legislature are blazing the way for a constitutional convention to modify or repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

Two proposals predicated on active co-operation of other States are sponsored by Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier (D.), New York. One would memorialize Congress to give the States power to draft their own enforcement laws and define intoxicating beverages. The other would ask Congress to summon a constitutional convention to repeal the amendment.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Dinner for Ushers Precedes Mrs. Otis Kimball's Party at Hotel Somerset in Honor of Miss Helen Hart Mason

FOR THE YOUNG SET (WHICH IS APPARENTLY NEVER for a moment dance-weary and counts that day lost which does not contain a party within its twenty-four hours) yesterday's large and important affair was the dance Mrs. Otis Kimball gave at the Hotel Somerset for her debutante granddaughter, Miss Helen Hart Mason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lowell Mason of Bay State road and the North Shore. To it the Young Set flocked in its usual large numbers, and before it there was the preliminary ushers' dinner without which no debutante party has a proper send-off.

MISS MASON'S brother, Henry Lowell Mason, Jr., and Herbert Stockton were directing heads of the usher staff, and serving with them were Frank Hart, Hayes Sturgess, Winthrop Wadleigh, Rupert Mackarin, Edgar Harding, John Leland, Philip Amphlett, Paul E. Fitzpatrick, Jr., Eben Draper, Francis Sears, Howland Francis, Charles McDowell, Clay Bartlett, Lincoln O'Brien and Fred Weed. The dinner was at the Somerset also, with a rose pink decorative motif used for the tables. The ballroom was bedecked in greenery and roses for the dance.

BUT BRIGHTER THAN ANY ROSE and correspondingly decorative was the picture frock of American Beauty taffeta that Miss Mason wore. Its crisp, fresh folds gleamed with a touch of rhinestone adornment on the bodice, which was a snugly-moulded affair, and the skirt carried out its portrait inspiration in long unbroken lines. The brilliant hue and graceful mode were both mightily becoming to their wearer, who is a slender blonde. Mrs. Kimball, in black lace, and Mrs. Mason, in white velvet, received with the debutante.

OTHER PRELIMINARY DINNERS had their place in the evening's program of entertainment. Dr. and Mrs. Langdon Frothingham entertaining for their debutante daughter, Miss Eugenia Frothingham; and Mrs. Louis Liggett entertained for her debutante daughter, Miss Lorraine Liggett. Miss Mary Margaret Loring, daughter of the Liddaley Lorings, also was the central figure for a small dinner company. This evening the debutante dinner and dance scene changes to the pleasantly homelike Country Club, where Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Weeks are giving a dinner for Miss Katherine Weeks for fifty or so guests, to be followed by a large dance.

BOSTON'S SMART SET CONTAINS any number of distinguished members whose citizenship is the world-wide sort that brings familiarity with courts and kings. This coterie is certain to figure largely when visiting royalties, crown princes, heirs apparent, royal dukes and such are in the offing and entertainment suitable to exalted state is to be arranged. Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer and Mrs. George Richmond Fearing are two such matrons whose names are down on the list of personages who will make the Boston stay of Prince William of Sweden a suitably royal progress, even for this democratically inclined son of the Swedish reigning house.

THE PRIME INTENT of the young Royalty's visit is lecturing (in which path he has had many illustrious predecessors). As a hunter of big game and as a sportsman of all-around expertness, His Highness will prove a most interesting platform attraction, and a social lion as well. Judge Frederick Cabot, President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard University, Mrs. Lowell, Mrs. Larz Anderson and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt are on the sponsoring list, which grows daily, and for official host and hostess, Boston is very fortunate in having those two charming people, His Excellency the Governor and Mrs. Fuller, to fill the posts acceptably.

MRS. FEARING, IN A MODISH two-piece frock beneath a rich sable wrap, was at the Copley-Plaza yesterday when bridge enthusiasts gathered for an afternoon at their favorite game. Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, in a black velvet frock from her favorite Paris designer, looked in for a while to take a hand or two. A rope of pearls and a touch of antique lace were smart accessories to an extremely effective costume. Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons wore black, a thoroughly becoming choice to set off her fair coloring. A single gardenia, a black chapeau of the Egyptian turban sort and a fox scarf completed Mrs. Emmons' ensemble to perfection.

Mrs. Ro er Cutler wore a wide hat and a frock that showed the ever-present touch of metal.

MRS. WALTER MERRIAM PRATT'S wide hat and black frock both showed glints of metal. Miss Elizabeth Leland was in green and Mrs. Thomas Motley, Jr., was in a frock of dull rust red. Mrs. Judd Dewey was in black. Both Mrs. Emmons and Miss Leland will be on duty at "Titania's Palace" on Saturday, the one to sell cakes, the other to sell candy. The "Palace" is doing a land office business, even Tuesday's stormy skies failing to deter those who wished to see this marvelous creation, and, of course, yesterday's bright skies brought out a record-breaking throng.

DEBUTANTES AND YEAR-OR-MORE-OUT GIRLS donned pert little aprons to serve tea and cakes at the exhibition. Miss Betty Soule, Miss Mary Mathews, Miss Nancy Vose, Miss Marion Upton, Miss Helen Moseley, Miss Barbara Spring, Miss Elizabeth Estes, Miss Emily Wentworth, Mrs. Benjamin Davis, Miss Dorothea Heath and Miss Elizabeth Ewer were in the bevy—a pretty set, each with her hair bound with a vivid green ribbon. I find that the smart set is going again and again to see the Palace—Mrs. Edwin Sibley Webster, wearing a rich fur wrap, was one of the "repeaters" yesterday. And the children are out in droves, each exclaiming over the miniature marvels.

MRS. EMMONS' "CAKE" TABLE ON SATURDAY at the exhibition is extended to include old-fashioned cookies and doughnuts, some of them cooked according to the rules laid down in a famous old cookbook that is in Mrs. Emmons' possession and was used several generations ago by a great-great grandmother of her's. Her co-workers on Saturday include Mrs. C. Wentworth Hoyt, Mrs. Walter Pratt, Mrs. Judd Dewey, Miss Mildred Bradley, Mrs. Hollis Shaw, Mrs. Robert Treat Paine, Mrs. Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, Mrs. Henry Parkman, Jr., Mrs. Francis Minot and Mrs. William Emmons.

CHINESE 'URGE' LEGATIONS TO QUIT TIENTSIN

Shanghai, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—A report received here today said representatives of the Peking government called on certain legations at Tientsin and "suggested" that the foreign concessions there be handed over to the Chinese.

Tientsin is the principal sea outlet and commercial capital of North China.

Foreigners arriving from Klukiang say Cantonese sentries have been posted in the British concessions of the latter city. About 12 foreign men who remained in the city despite the violent anti-foreign demonstration there last week have been taken aboard British gunboats They reached safety only after much difficulty

The British consul managed to remove archives before sealing the consulate, which thus far has not been molested. He is living aboard a small steam launch, from which the consular flag now flies. The French commissioner also is functioning aboard a small launch.

News from upriver points along the Yangtze River indicates that the evacuation of foreigners from the interior is proving very difficult Owing to a general boycott, as a result of which no boats, other conveyances or coolies are available, many of the foreigners may be compelled to walk.

SIGN PAINTER KILLED IN FALL, ANOTHER DYING

Providence, Jan. 12 (A.P.)—Two sign painters, in sight of scores of persons, fell from a scaffold onto the sidewalk in Exchange place here this afternoon. One is dead and the other is dying. The dead man is Walter G. Leach, forty-four of No. 12 Holmes street. The injured man is Thomas Pistone, nineteen, of No 106 Arthur avenue. They fell about forty feet.

PUTS PRIVATE UTILITIES ON DEFENSIVE

"The performance of municipal gas and electric plants has placed private companies on trial; they must either meet municipal costs or confess defeat."

This declaration was made today by Representative Henry L. Shattuck of Boston at a hearing before the House committee on rules, on his order calling upon the State Department of Public Utilities to report earnings and rates of gas and electric companies to the Legislature.

"The municipal plants challenge the alleged economy and efficiency of private ownership," Representative Shattuck asserted. "The only way to meet this challenge is to reduce rates."

He then cited seven private electrical plants in the State that have reduced rates in the past three weeks since his order was filed.

"These cannot be the only companies that can cut down," he said. "It is clear from examination of the earnings of these companies that even they could make further reductions."

Sheldon E. Wardwell, counsel for the Massachusetts Electric and Gas Association, read to the committee a statement in which he declared the gas and electric companies are willing to co-operate in the Shattuck inquiry; that they welcome the inquiry.

He suggested the Shattuck order should be broadened, to provide for notice and hearings before the Department of Public Utilities.

By this plan, he said, the companies would be enabled to present pertinent facts and suggestions.

JACKIES BID FAREWELL TO DEPARTING OFFICER

Charlestown Navy Yard witnessed an unusual spectacle today when 200 bluejackets of the U. S. S. Utah, headed by the ship's band, paraded to the main gate as an escort to Captain Walter R. Sexton who has been transferred to duty with the Bureau of Operations of the Navy Department at Washington. Captain Sexton was attached to the U. S. S. Utah for five years and was considered one of the most popular officers in the service. At the gate the band played "Auld Lang Syne" as the Utah crew cheered the departing officer.

GIVES STRANGER LIFT AND IS MINUS $400

Playing Good Samaritan to a stranger cost Frank Young of Antwerp street, Cambridge $400 today.

Young took a taxi in Central Square, Cambridge. The stranger, wearing the beaten-in nose of a pugilist, asked if he could ride part way with him. Young consented.

At Allston, to accommodate his guest, Young ordered the driver to go to the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Boylston street, where the flat-nosed one left the cab after a cheerful good-bye. Then Young discovered he was minus a wallet and $400.

HUGE ADVERSE TRADE BALANCE IN BRITAIN

London, Jan. 12 (A.P.).—Great Britain had the huge adverse trade balance, allowing for re-exports, of more than 465,000,000 pounds in 1926, the biggest since 1919 when in consequence of the war it was 868,000,000 pounds.

This serious position is revealed in the Board of Trade figures, just issued, which also show that the total foreign trade, that is, imports and exports combined, fell 228,000,000 pounds, as compared with 1925. The situation is ascribed largely to the coal strike.

SAWYER WANTS PROBE OF TEXTILE INDUSTRY

A special commission to study the problems of the textile industry in Massachusetts was today proposed in a resolve introduced in the Legislature by Representative Roland D Sawyer of Ware.

The commission would collect information relating to conditions affecting the industry, hours of labor, wages and make a study of all angles of the subject. Two members from the House, two from the Senate and two citizens appointed by the Governor, one from each major political party, would make up the commission.

MOUNTAIN LIONS TOP EXHIBITS FOR SHOW

Exhibitions of wild animals, birds, and fish hatcheries, are included among the features for the Sportsmen's Show, which opens for a week's run at the Mechanics Building, January 29.

The Massachusetts Fish and Game Association have already secured seven mountain lions to head the veritable Noah's Ark of game animals that will be made at home in the artificial forest which will be set up at the show.

CREW BATTLES DEATH ON FLAMING SHIP OFF CAPE

SAVED AS LAST HOPE IS FADING

A harrowing tale of a battle for life on a dismasted and burning ship in a howling gale off Cape Cod was revealed by the captain and crew of the four-masted schooner, Charles S. Whittemore today when they were landed from the coast guard cutter Dexter at the East Boston station.

From 7 o'clock Tuesday night until 8 o'clock the following afternoon, this grim spectre of death hovered over the skipper an dhis crew of the Whittemore.

Then, just as all hope appeared to be gone, the storm battered and ice-coated hull of the trawler John Ericson hove in sight and rescued the exhausted seamen

BATTLE FOR LIVES.

With no food, except two cans of peas and two cans of corn which they ate uncooked, and with no water save snow scooped from the wheelhouse, and this made salty by the flying spray, the men went through hours of suffering cooped up in the small wheel house.

In addition, one of their number, Laurie Mader, the boatswain, was in constant agony from his hands which had been crushed while trying to start the donkey engine.

The story of the Whittemore's battle with the Winters gale is best told by Captain C. Malcolm Wilkie, who was also owner of the ill-fated craft, as he sought the warmth of the East Boston coast guard station.

"We were bound from Nova Scotia to New York with a deckload of piling when we ran into the gale off the cape," he said. "We took it all day Tuesday right on the chin. There was a tremendous sea running and with a gale howling, the vessel was making hard work of it. The air was so thik with driving snow that you could hardly see your hand before your face.

MASTS CARRIED AWAY.

LOVE TESTS FAIL, SAYS DR. SCOTT

By JANE MARSH

Trial marriages cannot succeed in civilized society, and there is nothing but unhappiness ahead of those who defy established conventions, in the opinion of Dr. Frances Scott, an authority on social hygiene and teacher in that subject to girl students at Radcliffe.

"We live in a world where conservation exists on the marriage status and if you analyze conventions you will always find a reason for the basis for them," declared Dr. Scott, who from her experience with girls feels she cannot agree with Judge Ben B. Lindsey in favor of trial marriages.

Dr. Scott believes firmly, however, in frank teaching of sex problems, and she declared that such instruction should begin in the home when children begin to ask the first questions.

WANTS TRUTH TOLD.

"Don't tell children that the stork brings the babies but tell them the simple truth from the beginning," she said. "The place for education is in the home.

"An astonishing number of girls come to college with nothing but the bare knowledge of the existence of sex and we have to teach them an intelligent understanding. Sex is not sinful in the marriage state and young people should not grow up with the idea that it is.

"The need of such teaching is greater than ever now. Therefore, we are trying to give college students correct information to be handed on intelligently to their children.

TRIAL NOT THE ANSWER.

"The trial marriage is no solution of any problem. It may be all right with South Sea Island tribes, but their existence is almost wholly physical. Ultimate happiness is not likely to come when it is sought in defiance of conventions.

"If people were slower to marry there would be fewer unhappy marriages. Marriage is too easy. I don't know how legislation can make it more difficult, but as a doctor I realize that it is too simple to get married.

"There are countless sane, healthy outlets for emotional force in men and women. Work alone will not serve to counteract desire, as some people think. It is work, exercise, social contacts, a generally active life with normal friendly contacts with other persons that can accomplish this object."

Hub's Buxom Lassies ~ Cheer Prediction ~ They Will Reign Again

Lucienе LA Riviere, of "A Night In Paris" cast, proves to Martha Luzon, of the same cast, that he prefers the buxom type.

THEY SHARE LUCIENE'S VIEWS

Miss Dorothy Rhodes, of Lynn (left), and Miss Emma Reid, of Back Bay, are confident that the American beauty of the near future will be a buxom lass as Norman Rockwell, national-known magazine cover artist and illustrator, has predicted.

SLENDER ONES! HERE'S WHAT WILL HAPPEN

This trio from the cast of "A Night In Paris" illustrates how the girl who is an armful will be the favorite one in the near future. Martha Mackey loses out to Myrtle Wagner who is an armful for Luciene La Riviere.

STATE SALARY BOOSTS ASKED

Inspired by the report of reclassification experts, for which the Legislature appropriated $20,000, the first of a series of salary boosts was asked for today at a hearing before the legislative committee on public service.

Commissioner of Conservation William A. L. Bazeley, whose commission expired Dec. 5, and whose reappointment continues to hang fire, urged that the salary of the director of animal industry, Frank B. Cummings, be raised to $5,000, and that of the director of fisheries and game, William C. Adams, be set at the same amount. Cummings now gets $3,500 and Adams $4,000. The experts, Bazeley declared, recommended a minimum of $3,900 and a maximum of $5,000 for the first position and a minimum of $4,500 and a maximum of $5,100 for the director of fisheries and game.

Whitfield Tuck of Winchester opposed all increases saying anybody with snap State jobs paying $2,500 or over should consider himself lucky.

HUB TO HONOR BEN FRANKLIN

Boston, as the birthplace of Benjamin Franklin, will participate in a nation-wide celebration of "News paper Day" next Monday, by placing wreaths on the statue of Franklin at City Hall and on the graves of Franklin's parents in the Granary Burying Ground.

Benjamin Franklin, a Boston-born boy, was the first American publisher to achieve international fame. Monday marks the 221st anniversary of his birth.

Major P. F. O'Keefe, head of the P. F. O'Keefe Advertising Agency and president of the Advertising Club of Boston, which is sponsoring the ceremonies in honor of Franklin, will lay the wreaths in the presence of a distinguished delegation of American newspaper men.

Following the public ceremonies, the Advertising Club will be the host to publishers of the Boston newspapers at a Franklin Luncheon at the Hotel Bellevue.

Speakers include Julian S. Mason, editor of the New York Evening Post, whose address will be on the "Editorial and Advertising Department of the Newspaper"; Edwin S. Friendly, business manager of the New York Evening Sun, whose topic will be "The Newspaper in the Local Field" and William A. Thomson, director Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, who will discuss "The Newspaper—A National Habit."

Traps Four Deer For Boston's Sports Show

Fitchburg, Jan. 13.—Amusement park deer may be tame, but they are timid.

Game Warden James A. Peck and five attendants at Whalom Park chased, urged and cajoled four deer for hours today, trying to entice them into a steel cage for shipment to the Boston Sportsmen's Show.

Finally the warden's ingenuity won a victory. Dropping apples behind him, he walked slyly into the cage and all the deer followed. Then Peck slipped out and the trapdoor was dropped.

HOLD COURT IN SICK ROOM

Leominster, Jan. 13.—After holding court in the sick room of the accused motor's mother, Judge Ralph Robbins today found John Mufgett not guilty of driving an auto under the influence of liquor and drunkenness.

Three policemen testified in the regular courtroom that Mufgett was drunk when arrested. Mufgett retorted that he staggered from nervous indigestion and two doctors testified to his bad dizzy spells from various causes.

Then Judge Robbins transferred the session to the Mufgett home where the defendant's mother, ill in bed, corroborated her son's story.

AGED WOMAN IN MYSTERY

An aged woman, found wandering about the Everett El terminal today, proved a mystery to the Everett police and the physicians at Boston City Hospital where she was taken suffering from cold and exposure.

A starter at the terminal saw her fall in the snow, and stagger when she regained her feet.

He notified the Everett police and she was taken to the station house in an ambulance. There she refused or was unable, to utter a word, but she wrote on a sheet of paper that her name was Mary Gibbons and that she lived at No. 694 Columbia road, Dorchester. She asked a nurse to notify her sister Catharine Gibbons, of the same address.

The police telephoned Catharine Gibbons, but she said that she knew the woman slightly as she had visited her home also was not her sister and could not live with her.

SLAYS THREE IN BED, THEN SETS HOME AFIRE

Uniontown, Pa., Jan. 13 (A P)—A triple murder, a mother and her two small children being the victims, was discovered today at Lambert, near here, when residents of a coal mining village turned out to fight a fire in a miner's home. Those murdered were Mrs. James Wilson, 35; her son, aged 4 years, and a daughter aged 5.

GOLDEN ROADS

An Amazing Love Story of a Misunderstood Hub Working Girl

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Gay Moore and her cousin, Christine Noe, are employed in the State Street house of Johnstone Baird, Gay as a typist and Christine as a telephone operator. Christine is in love with Roger Pennington, whose wealth and social position appeal to her love of luxury. Stanley Baird, Johnstone Baird, is an old chum and son of Johnstone Baird, is in love with Gay. Gay returns his love. Johnstone Baird forbids his son to see Gay. Gay visits Stan's mother. Johnstone Baird accuses Gay of being determined to marry his son. Stan tells her he is an idler. He determines to earn his own living and leaves her. Gay hears nothing from Stan. Penny assures her he is all right.

CHAPTER 16.

"But Chris, you've no right——" He was furious, but puzzled as well.

Christine seemed all penitence, pathetic as a frightened child. "I'm going to leave this job, Pen. And you too! I was jealous—I can't help hating anyone else to love you!"

"But I've known Peggy Baird since we were children! There's no thought of love!"

"Oh, you say that! How could she help it?" Eyes shining through tears; face, so ardent, close to his own.

His anger went out. "Forget it, Chris. Only for the love of Mike, don't get me in a jam again! I had the whole of a time explaining.

Christmas at Moorelands. Candles in the windows of the old stone house, holly-wreathed.

Jaimie's brows bristling, his laugh rumbling as he handed them down. "For Christine—with Merry Christmas! For sweet Mayreese—"

"Well, now, how pretty? From you, Gay? How thoughtful!" Little Mary, coloring with delight.

"You like it, darling? Oh, look what Jaimie's got—" The big fellow doing a dressing robe, splendid with braid and buttons. Did Christy like the new shoe buckles, the lacy underthings?

"Tale come this morning, Gay — Long-stemmed, yellow roses: "because I love you" on Stanley's card. She muttered with joy.

"And for Christy—" Orchids, mauve pink as the sky at dawn, flecked with amber. A note from Penny, wishing her happiness.

She searched the box, tumbling out tissue wrappings. Nothing else "I'll make him pay for this," she whispered bitterly.

Still Christmas was merry.

Then it was January, and Stanley had not come.

Gay watched for him day by day; her eyes grew heavy with watching. Doubt crept into her mind. Perhaps he had thrown up the whole thing; perhaps he'd gone away somewhere

"Guilty" ~ To Question Davis ~ By Jean McDonough

"CHARLES, THE DAY THAT DAVIS came to father's office and told him that he wouldn't be responsible for what he did, if father didn't pay him by the next morning, was the day before father was killed. Does that seem to you merely a coincidence?" Charles remained silent. "And, anyway," I continued, "as I have said before, it was Davis' voice I heard in the library just before the murder. No one will ever make me believe that it wasn't—

Please Turn to Page 10, Column 1.

CHARLES SEEMED TO HAVE thought things over pretty carefully; he was ready to speak now. He reached over to me and took my hand in his. "Doris," he spoke earnestly, "I feel certain that it wasn't Davis. I've known him for years—it couldn't have been. Davis thought that he was wronged and thought that by intimidation he would be able to get your father to pay him. That is what I gather from what you tell me. But murder never entered his head, I'm sure. He'd rather see

Please Turn to Page 10, Column 3.

"DORIS, THAT'S WHAT I BELIEVE," he continued, "and I'm going to see Davis today to convince myself. I want you to come with me." "You want me to go with you, do you—to the house of my father's murderer?" I fairly shouted—I was so angry. It seemed to me that Charles cared less for me than for this man he called his friend. "No, Charles, I don't need to be convinced—I am already. I can't understand, Charles, why you have so much faith in Davis and so little faith in what I have told you."

Please Turn to Page 10, Column 2.

I GOT UP AND WALKED PAST Charles haughtily. I was furious. He didn't believe me because the man I accused was a friend of his. Charles stopped me. "Doris, it's not a matter of faith," he said, "it's a matter of right and wrong. Sure—if it weren't Davis . . . . If you had made a mistake and Davis was executed, wouldn't it be a horrible miscarriage of justice?" Charles was right, I thought. "All right, Charles," I said, "I'll go." (Continued tomorrow.)

a port list after being hove to the greater part of the day. The list shifted and we lost the port deckload of piling. Relieved of this the craft took a tide to starboard, the timber rolling overboard and taking the spanker, mizzenmast and main mast with it.

"The going of the masts opened up some of the seams and we began to take in water. The schooner was now wallowing like a log and every minute we expected some of the piling would knock a hole in her hull.

"Some of the seas were smashing their way aboard. We just grabbed what food we could and then all seven of us crawled to the wheelhouse, aft, where we sought shelter.

"The four cans of corn and peas we divided among us and it helped some. But how we missed the water! We tried to quench our thirst from the dew scraped from the deckhouse, but it was salty from the spray. We couldn't use it.

"Laura Madeira has suffered terribly, but he bore it like a man. He got hurt trying to start the donkey engine. Just as we were about giving up hope of being rescued, the trawler hove in sight and soon took us off. And here was are."

After being taken care of at the Coast Guard station, Captain Wilkie and his crew were taken to the British consul's office on State street, where arrangements were made to get transportation for the men to their homes in Nova Scotia.

Besides Captain Wilkie and first mate Walter, other members of the crew are: Mate V. G. Hirtle, Engineer Charles Laurie, Russell Rhodenhiser, Bowman Conrad and Kring Moga. Although the hull of the Whittemore was towed to Provincetown by the Coast Guard cutter Tampa, Captain Wilkie said his craft would probably prove a total loss.

The Whittemore was built at the Mystic Shipyards. Two months ago the craft went aground on Cape Ann and was then sold by her Provincetown owner, Irving B. Bill, to Captain Wilkie, who comes from Parrsborough, N. S.

DX REPORT

By "BARNEY"

Signals were about Winter average last night with many stations crowding the dials. "Sam and Henry" out of WGN, Chicago, sounded like o'd times because WGN was almost as loud as a local. KDKA was also fairly strong, but the rest of the stations, with few exceptions, were not loud, although all were clear and steady. WGBS, WEAF, New York, WJH, Buffalo; WGY Schenectady; WIC, Bridgeport, were other consistent stations.

'ARMY' RULES FOR GIRLS ARE ALL UPSET

Providence, Jan. 13.—Col George A. Havens may have been a colonel, but his two flapper daughters were captains of their souls, it came out in public today when he was denied a divorce from Mrs. Mary F. Havens.

The testimony contained mention of certain written rules laid down by the Colonel [illegible] the breakfast plates of the step-daughters. Wallbrena McKay, 19, and Hester Hubbard, 22.

And in the rule books were proclamations against kissing on the couch, placing rubbers in the wrong locations, turning on and off water faucets at stated periods, and various others.

It seems, according to the testimony that the written rules as applied to step-daughters, came up to the breakfast plates with two copies already on them. The step-daughters considered them "not so good."

It was testified that the Havens were married in 1924. He is 68 and his wife 45.

Havens in his testimony said the present Mrs. Havens had falsely accused him of poisoning his first wife and that she had accused him of being mean and stingy.

Mrs. Havens, however, testified that she had heard rumors that he had doped his first wife and had been warned to beware of him. She admitted that she did not love the colonel but was sorry for him. She had married him to better her condition, and also for the children.

She told of finding a letter in the colonel's pockets and which was from a woman friend. In this, she gave him the benefit of the doubt, she said.

FOLEY TO WAR ON GUN-TOTERS IN BOSTON

By BERT FORD

District Attorney William J. Foley of Suffolk County has declared war on gun-toters.

He has no mercy for them. He considers promiscuous buying and carrying of firearms one of the greatest evils of the day.

"I have notified my assistants," said the new county prosecutor today, "that no recommendations for leniency will be countenanced in gun-carrying cases.

"There has been too much laxity in this type of cases. Residents in the hands of immature youths have caused too much havoc. A more rigid embargo should be placed on arms.

"Any person carrying a revolver or pistol without a permit should be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law. The greatest care should be exercised in granting permits. Persons not authorized to carry weapons never carry them for any good purpose.

"The trouble with too many of our young men is they are dance mad. The boy accused of murdering a Medford butcher won a Charlestown championship. If the younger generation paid more attention to healthy out-door exercises and gymnasiums and less to dance halls they'd have cleaner and stronger bodies and minds."

"In South Boston our churches have cadet organizations and recreation places and camps in the Summer to keep the boys clean and rugged in body and mind.

"Often it becomes necessary to save youngsters from themselves. Many have no parents to influence them and start with the handicap of never having had real home influence.

"I don't believe in too much theorizing in dealing with crime. There is a tendency to much sentiment and absurd notions and theories."

'PEACHES' LOSES FIRST POINT IN SUIT

White Plains, N. Y., Jan. 13 (I N S)—"Peaches" Browning lost a point in her legal battle for separation from her millionaire husband, Edward W Browning, today when Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young ruled that Anna Olsen, a telephone operator, might be examined regarding conversations she is alleged to have heard.

Anna a testimony will be given to prove "Peaches" and her mother planned to effect the marriage to the millionaire for "material gain," and they contemplated divorce as soon as they had "got enough."

The millionaire's lawyers explained they wished to get the girl's testimony immediately, as she was planning to leave for Florida. "Peaches'" attorneys sought to prevent the early examination.

The Olsen girl said, according to Browning's lawyers, that she heard conversations between "Peaches" and her mother on several occasions.

These conversations showed, it was said, that Browning was "dragged" into marriage for the sole purpose of monetary gain, and that "Peaches" was unreasonable, and even jealous of the millions re'adopted daughter, Dorothy Bunsline Browning.

TRIAL STARTS JAN. 24.

Mrs. Heenan, "Peaches" mother, was pictured as the director of the alleged plot to mulct Browning through marriage.

Both "Peaches" and her mother have denied they were after Browning's money and were jealous of Dorothy Bunshine.

The examination of Miss Olsen is scheduled to take place in New York city on January 17.

Supreme Court Justice Albert H. F. Seeger, who will preside at the trial today denied reports that the trial had been transferred from Carmel, N. Y., to Poughkeepsie.

"The trial is set for January 24 at Carmel," he said, "and I shall be there prepared to proceed."

Senator Borah said he realized the conditions in Central America were a concern of the United States but he added that "under the Monroe doctrine we have no right to interfere with the government of any Central American country."

TY AND TRIS TO FORCE VERDICT

Two Stars Seem to Be Set to Make Landis Rule on Their Case

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—There was a vague yet conscious promise today of possible developments in the scandal of Cobb and Speaker versus organized — or disorganized — baseball, hard upon Judge Landis' verdict of acquittal for Eddie Collins, Schalk, Bush, Rowland, Dauss, Ehmke and other defendants charged by Swede Risberg with being accessories to a "Barney" in September, 1917

Some undergurrent of activity in the Cobb-Speaker matter is eddying around the judge's headquarters in Chicago, but the official policy seems to call for neither admission nor denial

The judge, usually frank with Newspapermen, was evasive when I asked him whether he would receive Cobb and Speaker in the event that they attempted to reopen their case.

"I have reasons of my own for not saying what course I would take in that event," was his reply "Just say that anybody can see me at any time."

SHOWDOWN PROBABLE.

That Cobb and Speaker, having bided their time while awaiting the Risberg verdict, have been in communication with Landis, whether personally or through their attorneys seems to be pretty well understood in certain well-informed circles in Chicago. That the accused, but neither convicted nor exonerated stars, will try to force Landis' hand appears to be equally probable.

They may take the Risberg verdict, with its refusal to accept the word of self-implicated "fixers," as having established a precedent and demand that Landis render a decision in their case.

MAY HAVE HEARING.

Indications are, however, that Landis will decline to make comment on the case, in which event the courts again will be the choice of the accused stars.

There is a possibility that Landis may give the three defendants, Cobb, Speaker and Joe Wood, a chance to face Leonard at Fresno and engage in a final showdown.

Landis Will Change Rules to Avoid Dead Scandals

Chicago, Jan. 13.—Four drastic amendments to the rules that regulate organized baseball, may be a direct result of the late Risberg scandal affair. The amendments will be proposed by Commissioner K. M. Landis when a committee representing the major and minor leagues meet at French Lick Springs, next Monday.

The Commissioner's suggestions are these:

1.—A statute of limitations with respect to alleged baseball offenses.

2.—Ineligibility for one year for offering or giving any gift or "reward" by the players or management of one club to the players or management of another club for services rendered in defeating a competing club.

3.—Ineligibility for one year for betting any sum whatever upon any ball game in connection with which the bettor has no duty to perform.

4.—Permanent ineligibility for betting any sum whatever upon any ball game in connection with which the bettor has any duty to perform.

By BILL GRIMES

Although little interest has developed in these games, the double header tonight which brings together Boston University and Technology and the University Club and Boston College is one of the finest attractions the Arena has offer d the followers of hockey th s season.

The Boston University-Technology game will be a sizzler. There is enough rivalry between these institutions to bring out every ounce of hockey in both teams. The Terriers had a good season last year, and in a measure pulled out from the Engineers, but Coach Stewart has gathered one of the strongest teams that ever wore the cardinal and gray and is out to displace the intown stars.

In Captain Bill Berkeley, Tech has one of the best players in the college ranks. Berkeley has starred with Tech for three years, and judging from the way he has been going this season, he s, having his best year. Berkeley is a Cambridge Latin School product.

Although Berkeley stands head and shoulders over his teammates, Technology is represented by a well balanced aggregation, one which gave Yale a battle to the final whistle.

The Boston University team has not played as many games as usual this season, but Coach Gow has been holding practice sessions regular, and the boys are all in fine condition.

Although Boston College with 13 reps sentatives, is a slight favorite. The Maroon and Gold ank ers should find the B. A. A., North eastern and the "Y" teams threatening but unless Coach Jack Ryder withdraws his stars. the final event will find another truck trophy perched safely in the athletic room at University Heights.

Walter Rierdon, formerly of Medford High School, and John Hayes will wear the B. C. colors in the sprints. Gus Breive of Northeastern is another good bet in this event. The 300-yard event with a field of the highest quality entered, promises to be the feature of the meet.

St. Mary's High, Waltham, has the distinction of being the only school to enter athletes. The "Saints" will be represented by J. Cisholm, L. Fahey, P. Greenwood and A. West in the "300." Other starters in this dash are F. Tripp and C. W. Thompson of Northeastern, H. Woodward and Tripoli of B. C. and R. Colson and H. Babbit, running unattached.

According to present plans the 600-yard race will be contested in one heat. Captain George Wilson of the "Y" is picked to win over a classy field of college stars. Jimmy Higgins, who carried the baton in the anchor position for B. C. a year ago, is expecting to offer the most opposition. The battle between this pair should be worth the price of admission

Catalina Swimmers Must Roll Along on Their Own

Los Angeles, Jan. 13.—The rules for the Ocean Marathon are as follows:

Each contestant must furnish his or her own boat or tender, which must be large enough to accommodate one official checker Swimming will not be permitted within fifty yards of a power boat tender

Costumes, trunks or swimming suits of any cotton, woolen or silk material. Suits of any other material, such as cork or rubber, attached or built into suits, positively barred. Rubber caps and goggles permitted, and any kind of grease or oil on the body.

Swimmers taking nourishment must do so without artificial support of any kind and, in finishing the swim, they must emerge from the water without aid of any kind.

One-half hour before the start each contestant must present a doctor's certificate showing condition able to compete, the examination to have been made within twenty-four hours of the starting time.

The contestant reaching the mainland first shall be declared the winner.

B. C. Slight Favorite to Win 'Y' Track Meet

By EDDIE DONDERO

Approximately 250 entries have been received for the annual classic under the auspices of the Boston Y. M. C. A. next Saturday evening at the "Y" gymnasium. This meet, held yearly under the the supervision of Athletic Director William C. Hultgren, marks the official opening of the 1927 season locally

There are eight events on the program and an entry bank entitles the applicant to take part in as many events of the program as he wishes. A series of two-lap relay races with the teams competing against time also are listed.

Boston College, with 13 reps sentatives, is a slight favorite. The Maroon and Gold ank ers should find the B. A. A., North eastern and the "Y" teams threatening but unless Coach Jack Ryder withdraws his stars. the final event will find another truck trophy perched safely in the athletic room at University Heights.

B. C. UNABLE TO GET TILTS WITH COLLEGE SIXES

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

That the hockey situation at Boston College is deplorable, is demonstrated by an article appearing in the most recent issue of the "Heights," the weekly publication of the student body.

Boston College ice teams have reached a stage where it is practically impossible for them to arrange tussles with other college teams. A sordid decrease of games has been noticeable for the past three years.

DEARTH OF OPPONENTS.

This season, with the professional leagues at their prime, and with only one amateur club hockey team in the Hub, Boston College's puck sters find it almost impossible to get games It is not manager Frank Sullivan's fault, for he has corresponded with nearly every college that is represented by a hockey team in this part of the country.

A make-shift schedule was the best that could be done. One game with Toronto University has already been played and the Eagles swing into their second test this evening with the University Club. A game with West Point away from home and one with Boston University at the Arena are listed for the near future Laval college from Canada is another segregation that will oppose the Maroon and Gold early in February

This leaves Boston College's hockey team with a five-game schedule and no immediate prospects of arranging any more. Former years have seen the Eagles playing from ten to fifteen games and most of them with college teams.

What can be done to remedy this disturbing situation is somewhat of a mystery. The Boston College student body wants to see their hockey team play other college sixes and prove that they are contenders for the intercollegiate hockey championship.

ABANDONMENT POSSIBLE.

The abandonment of the ice game by the Eagles in the near future unless someone will come forward and offer competition The only ray of hope is offered by Manager George V. Brown of the Boston Arena who states that Boston College's hockey schedule will be augmented when the amateur teams from Canada commence their annual invasion

LEWIS MEETS PAT M'GILL TONIGHT

By JACK CONWAY

STRANGLER LEWIS, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, and Pat McGill, Irish fitfleholder, are prepared to furnish a torrid battle when they clash in a finish bout best two falls out of three, at the Grand Opera House tonight, under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Lewis comes to Boston fresh from a triumphant tour in the south. The Strangler has been winning his bouts in impressive style and is confident he will come through with a victory. It is Lewis' plan to take on all comers and prove beyond doubt he is the king of his class. The big fellow is expected to rely upon his celebrated head lock to gain for him the victory this evening McGill will give Lewis some real opposition. The Irish heavy weight is one of the game's foremost. He has won ten straight matches and does not believe that Lewis or anyone else can halt his surge.

most grapplers.

Fat is a physical giant. He is also fast. More important he has intelligence and courage. These are difficult assets to overcome.

Abe Kaplan, Jewish champion, will be assaulted by Frank La Marque, the Frenchman, who knows his onions. Ned Maguire meets Chief Montour, the well-known Indian in a one-fall match, and Stanley Stasiuk will take on Charlie Donnell and Don Orlando at one and the same time.

EDDIE HUFFMAN will experience difficulty in keeping out of the way of Pat McCarthy's left hook when they clash at a Commercial A. C. show at Mechanic's Building on next Monday night. This was the blow that nearly knocked McCarthy to ruin Johnny Risko and Harry Persson.

I have also seen McCarthy do some sweet socking with his right. One night at the Arena he dropped the durable Joe Rosen a few times with right hand thumps to the chin.

HUFFMAN does his heavy execution with a right to the jaw. He shook Jack Sharkey up with this blow when they met in New York. He later tipped over Tiger Flowers with a right hand jolt when they met on the coast. If he is wise, McCarthy will keep out of the way of this smash.

PAUL DOYLE, who recently knocked out Lou Lowrie, wants to tackle Jack Zivic. Doyle and Zivic have already fought twice with honors even. Doyle showed like a ring master when he keyed Lowrie. He has the class to battle any welterweight in the world on even terms

Big Jim Jeffries Wins His Poodle

Glendale, Cal. Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Jim Jeffries, former world's heavyweight ring champion, won the decision in Justice Court here today in a title bout with Mrs. Jessie C. Swift over possession of a white poodle dog. Jeffries and Mrs. Swift live over in the neighboring community of Burbank.

Twenty-one witnesses, most all the news reporters in town and a flock of photographers had ringside seats.

"I raised him from a puppy," Jeffries declared to the tune of exploding flashlight powder "I know my dog when I see him. I know him by his color, by his stature—well, how does anyone know a horse?"

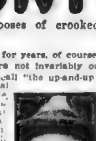
Jeffries was given the poodle.

RUNYON SAYS

THESE exposes of crookedness in sport always astound me.

I have heard for years, of course, that things were not invariably on what the boys call "the up-and-up" in professional pastimes I have even had a vague feeling at times when viewing some manifestation that all was not as should be, but somehow I could never convince myself beyond reasonable doubt that the skullduggery was true

I am a gullible fellow at best—or at worst. You please—and often marvel when the expose comes of some incident to which I bore witness that I did not see the scandalous goings on at the moment, the "pulled" punch, the intentional error, the "yanked" horse and all that sort of thing.



Damon Runyon

I am, to be frank, a "set-up" for a "framed" fight or race, or ball game, or any other sports carnival that I think is founded on the basic principles of honesty. For that matter, I am a dead cold "prospect," as they say, for a wrestling match. Fortunately, I never had enough money to make me a betting man, or the boys would have been chipping in for taxicabs to send for me all these years.

Knavery as Charged Fails to Show

I SUPPOSE if you told me in advance that a little pinstickering was to take place in the form of a phoney boxing bout, or other contest, I would still refuse to believe anything was wrong, especially if the principals happened to be good actors.

In fact, I HAVE been told in advance that there was "something doing" in certain boxing bouts, and have seen the boys laying odds of 4 to 1 that the results would be as I had been told, yet when the bouts came off they would invariably fool me. I mean to say, they would look so good that I would be unable to see where the "frame" went in.

As I have said, I have sometimes had a vague feeling that everything was not all right while watching some event, yet my subsequent analysis would fail to convince me to my own personal satisfaction that there was any ground for my suspicion. Perhaps I have too much faith in my fellow man, and I would rather be that way than to view everything with suspicion

The man who has that viewpoint is unhappy, so far as sport is concerned. He gets no "bang" out of life. The world is all wrong, and would rather get my thrill out of some event, though I might learn later that it was crooked, than to go to it with my suspicions aroused, and be bored by the show.

I HAVE little faith in my own judgment as to the validity of a performance, anyway.

I recall the night of the little waltz between Packy McFarland and Mike Gibbons, the master-hox er of their time, down a Brighton Beach which I was reporting on the New York American.

Brighton Fiasco Shown Again

I sat with Mr. Will Farnsworth, the sports editor of the paper, on one side, and with the good M. Jacques Curley on the other side the good M. Jacques serving at the moment as pugilistic reporter for another paper.

There had been rumors before hand that the affair between the lesers. McFarland and Gibbons was to be a business matter for the mutual protection of their reputations This was in the no-decision days in New York, the newspapermen rendering the verdict, each according to his lights.

The first round was about half over when a vague feeling encompassed me that the gentlemen in the roped enclosure were not exerting themselves to the best of their respective abilities. I said nothing during that my eyes might be deceiving me, but the good M. Jacques remarked softly in my ear:

"THIS IS TERRIBLE."

I CONTINUED hammering upon the keys of my portable typewriter through the second round when Mr. Farnsworth leaned over and with a Samaritan intent, said:

"This is so bad the crowd will be piling into the ring before the next round. I'll grab your typewriter when they start coming and you duck in under the ring so you won't get hurt."

My prediction caused me to make a few "pi" lines on my typewriter especially as the good M. Jacques again hugged in my ear.

"It is the worst I ever saw. I am surprised at the "gall."

But round after round went on with Mr. Farnsworth's hands reached forward and ready to clutch my typewriter and the voice of the good M. Jacques saying "Quick-start" and "Precious sakes alive!" in my ear, and nothing happened.

Threatened Riot Fails to Arrive at Bout

I mean to say there were no rush on upon the ring at no price and other disturbances, but as the final bell rang, I said to my telegraph operator:

"Tell my decision is no contest" I mean to imply by this decision that the affair was a fake, but the good M. Jacques and Mr. Farnsworth hurried their approval of my perspicacity.

Then, as I arose to leave the scene of the excitement my self-assumed Mr. James J. Johnston and Mr. Eddie Curley, the former a box ing promoter, and the latter a boxing writer, who had been watching the affair from remote seats,

"Say!" they cried in chorus, "wasn't that the greatest fight you ever saw in your life?"

So I ceased guessing.

Hill Resigns From Wesleyan

Middletown, Ct., Jan. 13 (A.P.)—Sam Hill, football coach at Wesleyan University for the past year and a half, has resigned and will leave Wesleyan in June, it was announced today by H. L. Connell, secretary of the alumni council. Hill plans to enter the law school, the announcement says, as assistant coach at "one of the larger universities, where he can be in touch with one of the recognized leaders of football coaches." The university where he will continue his work was not named.

"Wesleyan regrets Hill's going, for during his years and a half on the campus he has become unusually popular with the students, faculty and alumni," the announcement adds. "His teams have been characterized by a fighting spirit and an ability to flash strong in last quarter attacks via the air route, turning in victories on Williams, Trinity, Rochester and Middlebury."

Franklin Park Course Made Golf Popular in Hub Says Veteran

By BILL GRIMES

"It was the old nine-hole course which Willis Campbell had at Franklin Park," advances A. Linde Fowler of the Wollaston Golf Club and dean of golf writers in this country, that started the golf wave of popularity in this section.

"In the public links goes the credit for the development of golf in this country," he continued.

"For a long period of time, after George Wright and John Smith first introduced the game in the country at Franklin Park, golf was a fad. Anybody seen carrying a bag of golf clubs through the streets was an object of curiosity. The game go away to a slow start. The membership of the few clubs which fostered golf twenty years ago was so limited that there was no chance for the game to expand except by the construction of public courses.

LARGE GALLERY.

"I can recall the large crowds which made a practise of going to Franklin Park to watch the game played. They crowded around the first tee, endeavoring to satisfy their curiosity. Franklin Park was the only course where the public was admitted to watch golf played.

"In the old days, it took considerable courage to throw your golf bag over your shoulder, board a street car for Franklin Park, walk out to the first tee and start your round before that hostile gallery. Although hostile is the proper word to describe the feelings of the gallery, as far as the game of golf was concerned, it fell far short of describing the gallery's contempt for the players. Unless a player had the courage of his convictions developed to the nth degree, Franklin Park could not be termed an ideal spot for a golfing debut.

"Against almost unsurmountable odds, golf has forged its way to the top, not only in the United States but in almost every country in the world. It offers a healthy outdoor recreation for all and it is still in its infancy.

"I was surprised to learn that the boys and girls are not afforded opportunities to play at Franklin Park. A few years ago, the Park was the mecca of hundreds of school boys and girls. They would race home from school, throw aside their books, grab their golf bags and set out.

When the present 18 hole course at Franklin Park was opened about three years ago, Park Commissioner Shea barred the boys and girls. He set up the claim that the younger generation should turn their athletic activities to other branches of sport, for there was not sufficient room at the Park. He pointed out that the public golf course at the Park should be for the citizens so far advanced in age that golf was the only form of recreation they could indulge in without running the risk of injuring their health.

NEW COURSE NECESSARY.

"Now that I am aware of the conditions at the only public golf course in this section," added Linde, "I feel that the construction of a Metropolitan District Commission public course at Fowl Meadows is an absolute necessity. Some provisions should be made for the kids. They will be the champions of the future and Boston must hold its place in the golfing world, but this cannot be accomplished unless recruits are drafted from all classes.

Give the poor boy an opportunity to become prominent in golfing circles and the success in this world will be assured. The ability to shoot a good game of golf has opened the way for many boys to start a successful business career. I know of hundreds of young men who are well established and prospering, because of their prowess on the links, and a majority of them started their golf at Franklin Park, now closed to those really most in need of some asset to assure them a start towards future success."

The Bateman bill, which begs for an appropriation of $75,000 for the construction of a public golf course at Fowl Meadows, will come before the Committee on Metropolitan Affairs next Monday morning at the State House. The hearing will be held at 10:30 in Room 370.

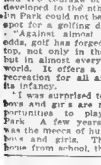
Hub Stars to Compete in Fordham Games

By STED CHANDLER

Boston will figure prominently in New York Saturday night when a strong delegation of track stars compete in the Fordham College games, to be held in the 102nd Engineers' Armory.

The local group includes Lloyd Hahn and Leo Lermond, who will be running for the Boston Athletic Association; Frank Chase and Luke McCloskey for Boston College, and the B. C. med boys will be there. The fields in all the events will be brilliant. The outcome of the various races will serve as an indication of what the forthcoming season will hold in store.



Sted Chandler

Edwin Wide, the Swedish distance star, particularly will have an opportunity to glimpse his future opposition.

It is the consensus of opinion that Lloyd Hahn will be the class of the works of the evening. In spite of the fact that reports, said to have emanated from Boston, are to the effect that the Nebraska flash is not in the best condition, it is figured that he is capable of turning in a performance of record-breaking calibre. Jack Ryder, who coaches him, and who has charge of his training with absolute confidence that the indoor half-mile record will fall beneath Hahn's feet before the current season passes into history.

The chances are that he will not break it Saturday night, which will be his first appearance of the year. But he has shown no signs of going past and shows so much promise right now that the long-standing mark of 1:54 54 5, which was made by E. B. Parson of Yale in 1904 appears to be doomed.

HAHN SHOULD WIN.

Hahn, whether he shatters the mark or not, should lead the half-milers to the tape Saturday night. He will find plenty of strenuous competition from such stars as Charley Judge, McCloskey, Marsters and Heiffrich, but is conceded to have the edge on the lot on both in speed and experience.

Judge is the national collegiate mile titleholder, making his first New York appearance indoors. McCloskey, the B. C. captain, was runner-up to Sonny Watters in that memorable half-mile at the I. C. 4 A. games last year, and is one of the greatest runners in the business. Marsters, formerly of Georgetown, is an ex-intercollegiate champion who is expected to show up well. Heiffrich, another title-holder is reported to be in rather poor condition and may find the going difficult.

A feature of the meet will be the Brooklyn College 1,000 yard event, which Leo Larrivee, former Holy Cross star, will attempt to win for the second consecutive year. A dark horse in this race is a Georgetown runner, Willie Sullivan, who made an auspicious season's debut last week in Brooklyn.

"FLYING COP" IN DASHES.

The "Flying Cop," Bob McAllister endeavoring to make a comeback which will bring him to the 1928 Olympics, has entered the dashes, of which there are three, 75 and 100 yards, and 160 metres.

With the Knights of Columbus games in Mechanics Building during next week, Boston track fans may look with interest upon the activities in New York, Saturday. Which is a reminder that the K. of C. meet entries are continuing a pour in with each day adding to the flavor of the occasion.

The sprints, with Hussey, Daley and Al Miller, already entered, and more speed artists promised, boon among the evening's thrillers. The old rivalry between Miller and Hussey enters its last lap, as the Harvard star is due to graduate this Spring.

Crimson Team in Millrose Meet

For the first time in history Harvard will be represented in the Millrose A. A. track meet to held in New York, February 5. The Millrose Games have long been a feature of the Winter track season, but this is the first time that Coach Eddie Farrell has entered it wise to enter any of his athletes.

Farrell announced today that he would send a one-mile relay team to compete against Columbia and the University of Virginia. The personnel of this team has not yet been selected.

Rockne Opposes Two-Second Halt

San Francisco, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—Knute Rockne, Notre Dame football coach, believes that the proposed two second halt after the shift will not be established. He denounced "agitators who are always trying to change the football rules."

"In spite of the recommendations of the big ten officials and of many coaches in the east," Rockne said, "I believe that the rules committee will take a saner view of the situation.

"Imagine a referee trying to count off the two seconds while the play is going on. I guess he would have to carry around an alarm clock, or, better still, they might place a pendulum on the scoreboard.

"If have never used the shift to gain any unfair advantage over an opponent and its value lies in the deception it lends."

NEW CREWS ARE INVITED TO REGATTA

New York, Jan. 13 (A.P.).—A history making struggle has been elected crews for supremacy on the water in prospect for the 1927 Poughkeepsie regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association on June 25.

This was was paved for this unprecedented entry yesterday when the board of stewards of the association voted to extend invitations to seven non-member institutions—Washington of California, Princeton, Navy, Princeton, Leland Stanford and Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Columbia, Cornell, Pennsylvania and Syracuse as members of the association compete the prospective starting fleet.

Should acceptance be received from all the invited crews, the association may have to broaden the race course to include three spans of the Poughkeepsie bridge, for the first time in the history of the classic. Up until a few years ago the course was confined to one span. When the entry increased to eight crews last year the lanes were strung out to bring the spans under two spans. Chairman Maxwell Stevenson announced that it was possible to get as many as six crews under one span, which marks the three-mile point of the varsity race, but that this appeared two years ago to crowd the shells.

Two crews outside of the association membership, Navy and Washington, have carried off first place honors for six straight years each having won three victories

VIN RICHARDS SAID TO BE GAINING RAPIDLY

New Orleans, Jan. 13 (A.P.)—Vincent Richards, nationally-known tennis star, ill here with influenza, is said to be recovering rapidly

Richards, who has been touring with Suzanne Lenglen and C. C. Pyle's aggregation of professional tennis stars, was forced to abandon the tour in New Orleans Sunday and still is confined to his hotel room.

Mrs. Richards says she expects Vincent will be able to leave Friday and he planned to join the tenn's troupe in Jacksonville, Fla. He will not be able to play for at least another week, however, she said.

PLEA MADE TO RAISE TENNIS DOUBLES LEVEL

New York, Jan. 13 (A.P.)—An appeal has been made to the United States Lawn Tennis Association to raise the plane of doubles competition "to the high level of proficiency attained in singles." Sounding the Sea

A NEW invention makes it possible to measure the depth of the ocean by means of sound. Impulses are sent to the bottom of the sea, and the time it requires for their echoes to return to the surface gives the distance.

How to Choose and Cook Vegetables to Tempt Family

By MARTHA LEE

"DEAR MARTHA: Can you tell me how to make my family like vegetables? They are hearty eaters and ask nothing more than meat, potatoes, eggs, toast, muffins, cocoa, coffee and an occasional dessert for variety. Vegetables, I know, they should have—must have in order to have a balanced ration. But how to accomplish the feat?"

Mrs. S's letter is just an echo of scores of others. They make many wonder whether the vegetables offered those fussy families were perhaps the usual carrots, turnip and cabbage overboiled in a too generous amount of water, indifferently seasoned and served. Carefully selected vegetables, carefully cooked, carefully seasoned and carefully served in appetizing dishes of an entirely different color.

Of course, I don't need to repeat that vegetables are rich in vital mines, those atoms of energy which balance nerves and aid digestion. Ten years ago we laughed at carrots and were suspicious of tomatoes. Today no luncheon, dinner or supper is complete without its vegetables.

These vital vitamines in milk and cream are lost if overcooked and poured away in the water in which the vegetables were boiled. Steamed vegetables are to be preferred at all times. Next steamed and then are canned. The new waterless method of cookery in which the vegetables cook in their own steam is ideal.

Now about choosing the vegetables. If you are going to have two for dinner, be sure that one is starchy, such as white or sweet potatoes, and one of contrasting flavor and color, such as spinach, string beans or French peas.

The luncheon vegetable plates are more and more popular. Tender cauliflower with hollandaise sauce sandwiched in a ring or combination plates of peas, carrots, mashed potatoes, crusty rolls or cheese souffle, tea and a light dessert—this is a meal that furnishes vitamines, energy and the cleansing qualities that we know are the foundation of health and beauty.

Creamed Turnips and Onions—Twelve small white onions, 8 medium-sized white turnips, 3 tablespoonfuls butter, ¾ cupful vegetable liquor, minced parsley, 3 tablespoonfuls flour, 1¼ teaspoonfuls salt, ¼ teaspoonful pepper, ¼ cupful milk, paprika or grated cheese.

Skin the onions and turnips and dice the turnips. Place both together in a saucepan and cover with cold water. Bring quickly to the boiling point and boil for five minutes. Drain and cover with boiling water and add one teaspoonful of salt. Cook until vegetables are tender.

Drain, saving one-fourth cupful of the liquor. Melt the butter in a saucepan and add the flour, pepper, and the rest of the salt. Cook until bubbling, then add gradually the milk and the vegetable liquor, stirring constantly. Cook until thickened. Place the diced turnips in a serving dish; make a hollow in the centre in which place the onions.

Pour the white sauce over all and sprinkle the turnips with minced parsley and the onions with paprika or grated cheese. Green onions may be used in their season.

Spinach au Gratin—Wash spinach several times, and cut it up to cook in just the water that drips from the leaves after washing. Fresh young spinach will cook nicely in seven minutes. Then chop it coarsely fine and serve individual baking dishes or ramekins buttered.

Line each with the chopped spinach, leaving a little hollow in the centre. Into this hollow drop a fresh egg, right from the shell. Try not to break the yolk. Over the top of the egg lay a slice of American cheese large enough to quite cover the egg. And bake until the cheese is melted and the egg cooked.

I haven't tried making it myself yet, but I should have the oven medium hot, and then lower the gas a bit after putting the ramekins in. This would be a nice Sunday night supper dish, with a fruit salad instead of dessert.

French Fried Parsnips—If you like parsnips, you will like them fried this way. Parboil in deep hot fat that as you would French fried potatoes. Have the fat heated to 365 degrees F. or when a cube of bread browns in 60 seconds. When the parsnips are brown, take out and drain on soft paper. Sprinkle with salt and serve hot.

Parisian Carrots and Peas—Cook three large carrots or the equivalent in smaller ones, cut with a lattice knife, until nearly tender—about fifteen minutes. Then drain and finish the cooking in a quarter cupful of butter or margarine, and a tablespoonful each of sugar and chopped mint, turning carefully.

Drain a pint or so of freshly cooked or canned peas, heated, and season them with one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt and a tablespoonful of butter. Surround the peas with a border of carrots on a serving dish.

Don't forget that tomorrow, from 3 to 6 P. M., the second Parlor Party will be held at the Corner Kitchen at No. 92 Summer street. Everybody welcome! Lots of refreshments and food samples for all.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

"The Making of a Husband"; Ann Lisle's Serial of Married Life

"I CAN'T loan more on an uncured risk," Mr. Fairbrother said in a tone of finality.

"I'll take the ten thousand and try to be grateful," I said with a realization that this was the best I could do.

When I left him after the matter had been put through, I went straight to Pat's office, hoping against hope that he would come to the rescue. His reception of me was cold and he did not welcome me with his usual "How's your self, Alanna?" But I laid the matter before him as meticulously as I had presented it to Mr. Fairbrother.

"If it's believing so much you are in this Burtonrow Cream, why can't you be starting small?" Pat asked.

"Because they're already started large," I said patiently. There are a lot of people in Lorenburg and generally regarded as Al. And to throw Butterworth on the market now would be to betray Lorraine and her new family as well as to let Irma out of a big tax bill."

"'Tis strange you are after being so concerned about everyone but your own," Pat said slowly. "Has no one been telling you that Ray Allington and Barney Tompkins have gone in heavy on Florida lands and that it's Neal and myself are tied up tight by our partners?"

"But Florida land means a quick turnover or money—and fast," I pleaded, feeling sure that daylight was about to dawn.

But it took his head sadly.

"The Miami land means that he said. "But there are after being a few spots on the map best; a Miami and Palm Beach and such places and though 'tis many of them will be marshes and everglades and unpopular with the Northerner when he starts moving in. 'Tis a few mud flats I'm afraid old B. T. Watson with——"

"He wouldn't! He's too shrewd," I urged.

"'Tis myself is after going down there bag and baggage about tomorrow and spending a few weeks see me now thing, look on terra firma and not when they are clear being circularized on maps," Pat said definitely after a few words of farewell. I left him convinced that he could not, in justice to his firm, do anything for me. But it was not until I reached the very door of my office that my stunned brain took in the full import of what Pat had said to me. Never I cannot expect help from Neal or Ray or B. T. Now, indeed, I must save the Stanley for me with the little I can raise on my own measre resources.

Can I—who have failed so miserably to manage my own life—make good for Loren and Irma and the little son Peter Stanley never saw? Let us vent along fairly smoothly for a week or so after I got the loan of ten thousand dollars from the Fairbrother Bank.

Irma's operation bade fair to be a success. The baby began to thrive. Loren Haldane's face lost some of its haggard, strained look. Betty got a little new business for A. L. Harrison & Co., and I saw a moderate improvement in the tangled affairs of the Stanley Company.

But, in spite of all I told myself to be grateful for, I found myself growing daily more unhappy. There was no word from Jim so news of Arlette, and the only happiness I found was in Ralph's unswerving devotion. But my conscience made it daily harder for me to lean on this "to take advantage of it"—as I found myself feeling I was doing. And then one Saturday noon Jeanie made a gesture of friendliness—a gesture of which I felt from the first many strange things were to come. Ralph came into my office with a look of pleasant satisfaction on his face.

"Behold the gentleman with the white flag," he said after we had exchanged the greetings which never seem to represent anything we actually want to express for each other. "Jeanie called me this morning and begged me to smooth the way for a telephone call she is going to put in for you just about now."

"What does Jeanie want?" I asked, almost as coldly as I felt.

"She's lonely," Ralph said, "I guess she has never recovered from the death of baby Pat, and poswith big Pat in the South on his protracted business trip—Jeanie is conscious of how few resources she has within herself."

"Jeanie isn't going to cry-baby me about her loneliness, is she?" I asked curtly.

"You have resources—as occupation—someone who longs to banish loneliness forever," Ralph said simply. "Jeanie has been very fine. If she wants your friendship, are you going to deny it to her?"

"What would you do in my place?" I demanded.

"Why, I'm going to do—" "W at will that be, Ralph?" "Something kind and generous." Ralph said with such convic on that I could not fail him when Jeanie called a minute or two later and begged that Ralph and I should come out to spend Sunday with her and stay to tea as well as to dinner.

Once that was settled Ralph and I took Loren Haldane to lunch with us to visit Irma at the hospita, where she was beginning to show signs of reviving life and mind and then agreed to the lonely old man's plea and went home with him to dine. One of his ironies Ralph said as were driving home dropped in for dessert and coffee and after that it was only decent for us to agree to stay on for a few rubbers of bridge.

"I'm always frightfully disappointed at the constant defeat of our plans to be alone in the selfish roadster' I bough lust for the pur pose of insuring a little 'twosing.' "And yet I suppose being surrounded by people and duties makes these probationary months easier for us—your acknowledged fiance."

"Don't call yourself that," I protested.

"Why not—dearest?"

"It's horrible to be married to one man—and—promised to another."

"I enjoy reading all those letters from Rinso users because their experiences are so much like my own. Why, I depend entirely on Rinso for the weekly wash and for my housecleaning, too. The safe Rinso suds certainly get clothes whiter—whiter even than harsh bar soaps and powders. And you hardly have to rub them at all. Besides, washing them with Rinso makes the clothes last longer—and saves the hands, too. And you ought to see how bright and clean Rinso washes dishes, floors, bathroom tiles and sinks."

Millions use Rinso Thousands write us letters like this.

"Clothes last longer," Cambridge woman says:

Clothes get whiter —last longer, too

when dirt is soaked out this gentle way

MAKE next washday a pleasant adventure. Change to Rinso!

Just a simple change in soap, but here's what happens: No more scrubbing. No more hard rubbing. No boiling, even—unless you like to.

Yet a whiter, brighter wash than ever! Soaked clean—not scrubbed threadbare. Even the parts that soil most, the cuffs and edges, need only a gentle touch between the fingers to come snowy.

No wonder clothes last longer, keep their colors better, this way!

Just soak and rinse

Nothing compares with Rinso. It gives thick, soapy suds even in hardest water. These suds loosen dirt and stains so they float off without hard rubbing. No need for a washboard, now!

Rinso gets clothes the whitest white you ever saw, without boiling. Sterilizes, too! And it's so safe; contains no acids, bleaches or harmful chemicals.

Your hands will be grateful for the change. Rinso saves them from getting old and washworn.

Get Rinso from your grocer today. So economical. It's all you need—no bar soaps, chips or powders. For best results follow easy directions on package.

Best in washers, too!

Because it is efficient and safe, and because it gets clothes whiter and brighter, Rinso is highly recommended by the makers of 30 leading washing machines.

The Granulated Soap that Soaks Clothes Whiter

The Chauffeurs Who Missed Their Wives

By WINIFRED BLACK

ONE of the chauffeurs was named William Watson or some such respectable and simple name. The other was named William Schmidt or something like that.

They were both good drivers—careful and expert and both had been in the army. They were rosy and fresh skinned as is the wont of young men who live much in the open air.

They were married and each of them drove for a company which sends people touring through the mountains and along the rivers and back and forth to old castles and sailed towns and quaint villages.

The two Americans called the first chauffeur Sam Weller. His real by was something like Sam Weller with his quick wit and his good humor and his "Look alive" ways.

The second driver they called "Lieber Augustine" because they wanted to call him that. But one of these drivers didn't want to go very far from home. He had a young wife and he was very much in love with her and he didn't want to be away from her too long; besides, she made wonderful tea, and she had a way of toasting muffins—dear me—and serving them with plenty of butter.

The other young man had a young wife at home, too, and he carried her picture in an inner pocket and every once in a while the two Americans heard him whistling softly under his breath:

"I lost my heart in Heidelberg."

But he didn't want to hurry back home.

He wanted to keep on and keep on, for he was trying to buy a little home in the country for his Liesel and have a little farm and take good care of her and have some boys and girls of their own to love and train.

The two Americans drove through England and into Oxford and through quiet villages and they drove through Germany and into the Tyrol while all the grass was green, but the trees were changing color and the rivers were like great lade rivers in a landscape carved by the cunning Oriental workmen who use jewels for paint.

They talked broken German and bad French and didn't try to talk at all in Holland, but just nodded and laughed. That seemed to do quite as well. And when they were in their room at night talking over and counting what money they had left and calculating how far they could get with it, they were very apt to say something about Lieber Augustine and Sam Weller.

For one of the Americans said that Sam Weller was more in love with his wife than Lieber Augustine was in love with his wife.

"Sam wasn't happy a minute away from his wife," said one American.

"And I call that love."

"Lieber Augustine wasn't happy a minute unless he was doing some thing for his wife. That's what I call love," said the other American.

And so the argument kept on—day after day until it became almost a ritual. And the two Americans never reached the point where they agreed.

Now which do you think was right? Which kind of man would you want for your husband? Tell me that, girls.

CLEAN KIDNEYS BY DRINKING LOTS OF WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys If Bladder Bothers or Back Hurts

Eating too much rich food may produce kidney trouble in some form, says a well-known authority, because the acids created excite the kidneys. Then they become overworked, get sluggish, clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and much of the kidney region, rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, coated tongue, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, begin drinking lots of good water and also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity; also to neutralize the acids in the system so that they no longer irritate thus often relieving bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to help keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disorders.

Advice to Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Lately, the most wonderful young man I ever met has come into my life. But he doesn't seem to "see" me, beyond the fact that he tells me his troubles and ambitions and that pours out his feelings to me.

I am grateful to him for this, but sometimes it makes me sad to think that I am only good enough for his confidence, and that he may perhaps go to some other girl and tell her how wonderful she is. He appreciates my interest. But I get sick of understanding everyone and not getting any further.

Will you please give a few words of advice to one who plays the role of "UNDERSTANDING FRIEND."

YOU are a good listener, my dear, and your friends are encouraged by your ready sympathy to confide in you. The gift of sympathetic, attentive listening is rare. You should be glad you possess it.

You may be sure that a man who loves to tell you his hopes, plans and ambitions values your friendship. Such congenial companionship may prove the first step to romance. But it does not necessarily lead to romance.

Are you careful to look your prettiest and daintiest at all times, so that he will be proud to invite you to go to his friends?

Make yourself as attractive and lovely as you can, so that in addition to enjoying your society he will be thrilled by your charm.

Meantime, give love time. Enjoy in full measure today's congenial companionship. Make the most of yourself and your appearance.

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"YES, that's what we use to bleach hair. That's white henna," Marie, the beauty shop attendant, said. "Why, you don't want to have anything done to your hair, Mrs. Wallack. Yours is just lovely, I think."

Honey Lou shook the cropped curly head that made her look like a beautiful boy.

"No. I'd never have mine bleached—not in a hundred years," she firmly declared. "If it turned as gray as an elephant's trunk, I'd never have a thing done to it."

In the glass she could see Marie smile to herself. "Oh, yes you would, Mrs. Wallack," she said out of her wisdom. "You wait 'til you start getting old, and you'll be like all the rest of the women. Dieting and bleaching and painting themselves up—trying to keep some man in love with them."

"But Jack would love me just the same if I looked like the last day of a week-end party," Lou told herself. "I'm not afraid of—"

Perfect love casteth out fear."

When Honey Lou stepped into the waiting room, on her way out of the shop, she met Suzanne Clemens and Daisy Deane.

"Oh, hello, Beautiful!" they greeted her. "Where's Angela?"

Honey Lou looked blank. "I don't know," she answered. "I haven't heard from her all day."

"She was coming down here this afternoon," Suzanne was saying, when Ma'sie contralto voice called out from the room behind them.

"She just left," she told them "I took care of her just before Mrs. Wallack came."

Honey Lou's thoughts flew to the empty box that had stood on the dressing-table in that room when she went in. Could it be that the wonderful color of Angela's pale gold hair came out of a box marked "White Henna?" She wondered.

Suzanne and Honey Lou drove home together.

"Do you know, I'd give anything in the world to be in your shoes," Suzanne gave Honey Lou a keen glance as she spoke.

"Why?"

Suzanne laughed. It was not a happy laugh, but "sharp, like one that cracked like ice.

"You have everything that I want," she said.

"What?" Honey Lou was puzzled "It seems to me you have everything there is to have, Suzanne. You're pretty and smart and brainy—"

"Well, I wasn't brainy enough to keep my husband happy when I had him." Suzanne's voice cut in like a knife. "When he wanted me to have children I told him I wasn't going to turn my house into an incubator. And we never had any time to ourselves. I packed the place with people and had parties all the time, until he just got good and sick of it, I guess. Anyway we had one awful row and he cleared out. You know, Lou, he was the quiet, serious kind like your Jack, and I was doing the big parade all the time—always on the jump. If he'd come back to me I'll bet I'd—tie—like a pricked balloon. You hang on to Jack, Honey Lou."

"Do you think Jack's quiet and serious?" Honey Lou asked.

"Oh, sure. Most men are th... by-the-fire kind," Suzanne answered.

"I always thought he'd marry Angela Allen," she said in her blunt honest way. "I'll bet Angela could knock you for a couple of Gene Tunneys because you beat her to it. She was always crazy about Jack, and still is, if you ask me."

For the hundredth time, Honey Lou thought how much Suzanne was like One-Armed Annie. Suzanne had more money and more education and better clothes—but, under her skin, she was Ann's sister, just as Rosie O'Grady and the Colonel's lady are sisters under their skins.

She laughed, and then her face sobered suddenly.

"If Angela cares about Jack it's the way a sister would love a brother, I think," she answered thoughtfully. "And, of course, she and I are the greatest kind of friends—we're like sisters, almost."

She waited for Suzanne's reply. But Suzanne merely blew a long jet of cigarette smoke from her lips, and began to hum "Horace" in her light voice.

"That reminds me. I want to see Angela about something," Honey Lou went on. "Drop me at her house instead of my own, will you?"

She found Angela dressing to go to the theatre with Timothy Donegal. She was sitting before her silver-littered toilet table in a white kimono, and rubbing toilet water into her scalp. Her gilt hair was all around her in a shining cloud

"What wonderful hair you have!" Honey Lou's eyes were full of admiration as she dropped down on a cushioned stool beside her. "But tell me something—do you ever do anything to it?"

She was startled by the look of fury that flashed into the gentle face between the wing of shining yellow hair. It was only for a stunned like a cupful of ice being thrown full in her own face.

"What do you mean?" Angela asked. "Is that why you stopped in to see me? To ask me if I bleach my hair like a burlesque queen?"

She looked as if she were going to burst into tears, and Honey Lou jumped up and put her arms around her. "No, no, Angie, dear," she cried to soothe her. "But you know it is—almost too beautiful to be real."

Love Is Not Blind

But the Lover Is

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

LOVE was there when Letty awoke. He, the invisible one of all the ancient Greek gods who is left, and will never die.

He saw her curl papers; her little dewed nose shiny with sleep.

He saw her tremendous yawn into the golden eye of the startled sun.

He saw her eyebrows like a wisp of silver—unmade-up.

He saw her Mouth—not exactly a Cupid's bow without its lip rod

He saw that Letty was sweet—but not a slaying beauty at eight a. m. in the light of a Winter's morning.

But the lover only saw her at EIGHT P. M.

A slaying BEAUTY.

But love says—IF he is a true lover he will like her even BETTER the other way!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

UNTIL I forget you . . . when will that day be? Ah, when every weary wave sleeps upon the sea! After every Springtime bloom has passed away, after every primrose dies in earth's last May. When the sunlight falters and its rays grow dim, when the last wind sighs to rest on the world's far rim, when the ordered seasons waver in their course, when the crystal fountains die, fainting at their source, then shall I forget you, and recall no more every sweet and shining hour out of time's bright store that your presence quickened with a rare delight, then shall I forget when stars forsake the night. But until these portents are and all I see I shall hold you closer in my memory, I shall count you dearer as the years take wine, never I forget till buds forget the Spring!

to play and forget. Maybe she'd never have him near her again; thrill to his dearness. . . .

Penny sometimes looked at her from across the room. Not so bitchy-some now. Was he, too, uneasy?

He spent much time away; then he was gone for a day and came in in a rush. Just before closing time, sent Gay a note asking her to wait. Christine saw the note; Gay knew she would wonder.

"About Stan," she said nervously. "Tell you tonight—" Her cousin's was capable of suspicion of her best friend!

Penny came after the others had gone. "I'm breaking confidence Gay. But he's ill."

She began to tremble. "Not—not very ill? Not in danger?"

"Well—it's pneumonia. They'll know tonight. I thought if you'd come. You see, he's wanted you."

She was pull ng her wraps from the hook, fighting with her aching heart. "Now, Pen—now . . . He wanted me—you didn't let me know? You wouldn't take me to him?"

They dashed down the stairs, not waiting for the elevator. "He wouldn't let me. Made me promise Was with him all day—he's flighty. Fever. Tonight's going to be rough, doctor said. Hey—taxi!"

They bumped along a rough pavement and Gay felt as if each nerve were a separate, beating agony. Above the pounding in her ears she heard him explaining:

to Gay? Came to see him and he wouldn't say a word?"

She supposed what she said would n't penetrate the vagueness where mind wandered in fever. Yet she kept answering his whisper. "Gay", after a long time she thought he seemed less troubled; a little more restful.

No world but these four walls painted dull green. Four walls and Stan who didn't know her, and the hurt that was herself . . .

Chris. Only for the love of Mike

Once Penny came and said he had telephoned to let Jaimie know she should her head without understanding. Once she stared blankly into the face of a nurse who seemed to be asking something of her; the nurse went away and brought a glass of milk.

Other nurses, an interne, came and went. Then the doctor appeared and sat down opposite. She knew something terrific was about to happen. The turning point? When a spirit stands between life and death uncertain which way to go?

She prayed then; broken little prayers winging from the depth of her being. "Send him back to me, God—send him back to me as he was—so merry, so fine——"

The dry fire seemed to die slowly from the hand she held; she looked up in terror.

The doctor said, "It's all right, my dear. He'll sleep now. Here—not going to faint after being so brave? A little water—there—"

Penny, his face drawn, was waiting. Broad daylight outside. He hailed a cab.

"I'm going up home with you. You're coming this afternoon! Maybe they'll have a spare couch I can borrow? I'll bring mine back then."

They dropped wearily upon the cushions. "You're wonderful, Gay. You helped me. Just being there so quiet and sure."

"Oh, I wasn't—I wanted to die Penny—if you hadn't taken me to him! . . . I'll always be thanking you. As long as I live. You understand, Penny? As long as I live! Sometime I'll repay—"

She leaned forward; kissed him quickly.

Malaria Mosquitoes

By CHAS. A. L. REED, M. D.
Former President of the American Medical Association.

ONCE, many years ago, there was a veritable epidemic of malaria in Clifton, one of the most beautiful suburbs of my city.

Investigation revealed that in every instance the large rolling lawns had decorative ponds with lily beds and fountains.

The celebrated Dr. Roberts Bartholow investigated the conditions and advised that the ponds be abandoned. In all instances in which his advice was followed the malaria ceased.

This was many years before the mosquito theory of malaria, conceived and taught by Sir. Carlos Finlay of Havana, was scientifically confirmed by Dr. Walter Reed and his brave associates.

A few years after that demonstration I was in Panama during the early construction period of the canal. There I met the brilliant Gorgas and his leading lieutenants, Carter and La Prince. They were fighting malaria and yellow fever on the Isthmus. They were draining all natural stagnant pools that could be drained, covering others with oil, abolishing water barrels, installing a civilized water system and highly penalizing all persons who permitted stagnant water to stand on their premises.

Their most serious fight was with the careless or ignorant people who tolerated water to stand and become breeding places for mosquitoes.

But they finally won—and that's the way and primarily by whom, the great Panama Canal was built, yellow fever driven from the world and malaria brought under control—in Panama.

And there is yet a lot of it—not at Panama—but right here in this presumably enlightened U. S. A.

Well, Gorgas is gone, but La Prince and Carter are carrying on the good work of education, with signs of great progress on the part of the people. Great enterprises are now seeking expert advise concerning not only this protection of their own interests but the protection of the health interests of the people.

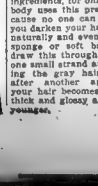
AN OLD RECEIPE TO DARKEN HAIR



Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years are the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is musssy and troublesome.

Now-adays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darken your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When I am ordering some note sheet letter paper to be used only for business letters (that is, for letters to my bank, to department stores, and so forth, should I use a title before my name? M. R. G.

Yes. I emphatically recommend this kind of printed letter paper for business letters, but there are certain details of this kind of letter paper that should be done with formality. One is the use of the title before the name. If you are a married woman you use your former name. Like this:

Mrs. John Henry Adams,
3 Home place,
Home Town,
Connecticut.

There should be, in these printed headings, as far as possible, no abbreviations. If you are an unmarried woman you should have "Miss" printed before your name. All these rules also hold true if you have the same and address printed on the lapel of the envelope.

Now that Dame Fashion has so definitely set her seal on boiled shirt fronts, I am thinking of having a few made for my husband. Do you think it would be in good taste to have them made of colored linen? Mrs. J. H. B.

Not at all. Boiled shirt fronts are worn only with dress clothes, and dress clothes are worn only with white shirt fronts. Colored linen shirt fronts are worn with sport clothes.

Is it correct to wear flowers with a tailored suit? Mrs. A. B. C.

Yes. Flowers are worn with tailored suits, with dress suits, with sport clothes, with evening clothes, with afternoon clothes—in fact, with any clothes. The use of flowers as accessories of our costumes, both for day and evening, one of the most artistic and easiest presents to give a woman of any size. This year is a flower to adorn her dress or coat. The world of fashion—even the world of artificial flowers—is one which offers no such an eloquent opportunity for expressing our taste and artistry that choosing the flowers that are appropriate and complimentary to our friends is a chance to exercise our taste. Appropriateness, harmony, color, design, texture—these are what we must keep in mind when making our floral gift to her. One warning—be careful not to choose orchids—either natural or artificial—if the woman to whom you wish to send them is not an "orchidy" woman; that is, if she is not exotic or particularly queenly, or has not a particular fondness for these too often-difficult-to-wear flowers.

DAILY SHORT STORY

AN ACT OF HEROISM

By Louise P. Armstrong

"I THINK Gladys Moffitt is one of the rudest girls I ever saw," Dolly Winson told her husband as they drove home from his office one night. "Disgustingly rude and overbearing," she repeated, tilting her nose in irritation at the thought of Miss Moffitt's rudeness. "Why, I asked her yesterday where you'd gone, and she said that she wasn't at liberty to tell me. Then—and I picked up a letter from your desk—just glanced at it myself—and she almost snatched it out of my hands. Had something to say about 'private correspondence of the firm.'"

Tom Winston laughed. "She didn't mean to be rude," Tom said indignantly. "She's only careful of the proprieties. A law office, you know, is a place where people bring their troubles. They talk in an undertone, and confidence is assured that they say will not go beyond the office doors."

"Oh, I understand all that, Tom," returned his little wife, "and I certainly had no idea of prying into any of your secrets. She should have realized that!"

"I wish you knew her better," Tom Winston said. "She's a fine girl — and an excellent stenographer."

Several days later Tom Winston with his partner, Sam Nettleton, had to leave town for the week-end on business. "I don't like the idea of your staying out here alone in the suburbs at night, Dolly," he said that morning as he left.

"I was thinking I might ask Miss Moffitt if she could manage to stay out here with you—that is, if you want her. I really believe she'd like to come."

"But I don't want her," expostulated Dolly, still vaguely resentful of the girl. "I'm all right—and I'll have the dog for protection."

"Well," Tom's response was full of misgivings. "I'd feel better, though, to know that someone was with you. How about asking—"

"I'll not ask anyone" reiterated Dolly firmly.

Nevertheless, the night was a long and lonesome one. Just shut herself up in the kitchen after the maid had gone, and he howled miserably. Twice she crept to the head of the stairs and peered down. Ton dare to venture below and turn the dog out! Anyway, it was comforting to know that only a very bold burglar would be likely to enter such a household until dawn.

She drove in early the next morning to get the mail, since it was only delivered in the suburbs once a day, and Tom had been encouraged to bring it out at lunch time.

Winston & Nettleton occupied the second floor of the rambling old building. She climbed the stairs with a feeling of distaste at the thought of having to face the stenographer. So superior and self-contained thought Dolly. Well, she'd just ask for the mail and then depart, without any effort at conversation.

But the office door was closed—locked! And within she could hear the telephone ringing violently.

Dolly was plainly bewildered. As she hesitated a moment, trying the door again to reassure herself, she remembered that she had Tom's key in her bag. She slipped it out and quickly unlocked the door. And as it swung open, she gasped in amazement, for an astonishing sight met her eyes.

Before the huge iron safe in the corner a big man crouched. She could not see his face, but she saw that his fingers were busy with the dial, shifting it this way and that, in his absorption, and because of the noise of the telephone bell he had not heard her enter. As the bell ceased, she heard him mutter and swear under his breath.

Dolly's knees trembled and she stood rooted to the spot in terror. Then her glance wavered to the opposite corner of the room, and she saw Miss Moffitt. The girl was lying on the floor, bound hand and foot, and gagged. Her face was white and drawn, and her gray eyes were wide and staring. She looked at Dolly in dumb appeal, and Dolly looked back at her, a feeling of utter helplessness overwhelming her. I must scream, she thought—but as though the stenographer sensed her thought, she saw her shake her head violently, then nod toward Tom Winston's desk beside the door.

A revolver lay there—a big army revolver. Dolly leaned forward to grasp it, then whirled about to face the man.

"Hands up!" she heard herself saying in a clear, ringing tone. And curiously, as her fingers curled about the cold steel of the trigger, she felt her fear vanish.

The big man sprang up and faced her—and Dolly laughed aloud. "Harry Holmes," she exclaimed. "What are you doing here—robbing our safe?"

But her laugh died in her throat as she saw his face; it first went red, then white with anger, and his eyes blazed in a curious manner. Why, she had been to school with this young giant—had stood on the side-lines and rooted for him in many a football game!

"Why, Harry," she repeated, "what are you doing here? And what have you done to this poor girl?"

Then Harry Holmes spoke, sullenly, with an ominous threat in his tone. "You'd better keep out of this, Dolly! Put that gun down and go quietly. I've come to get something that belongs to me."

"Something that belongs to you?" amazement and indignation in Dolly's voice. "And yet you come like a—a thug and a thief to get it! I don't believe you, Harry! And I'll not go—you understand? But you will go yourself—at once! Come back next week and ask Tom for what you want, and if you have a right to it he'll give it to you. Now go!"

He eyed her uncertainly for a moment, then laughed contemptuously. "You'd never have the nerve to shoot that thing off!" he told her.

And in answer, Dolly realized that he spoke the truth! But a happy thought came to her, and she smiled, and laid the gun on the desk again. "Maybe not," she said calmly, "but just the same, I believe you'll go quietly, Harry Holmes. Yes, I really believe you'll go! You see, Judge Evans will be up here in a moment. I passed him on the street as I came in, and he said he would. He's expecting a telegram from Tom here."

Harry Holmes started, then moved uneasily toward the door.

"Yes," continued Dolly, now entirely self-possessed, "Judge Evans carries a revolver, too, Harry—since he's been appointed justice of the peace. And I really believe under the circumstances the Judge might shoot—he has a rather uncertain temper at times!"

But Harry Holmes, even as she spoke, was halfway through the door.

She crossed the room quickly, locked it behind him, then turned and flew to unfasten the gag in the girl's mouth, unloose her bonds.

When the girl stood up, Dolly felt weak and queer and her hands trembled. She sat down in the big chair at Tom Winston's desk and shuddered.

"I tried to fight him off, Mrs. Winston," Gladys Moffitt said tearfully. "He —he came for some letters he had written, one of our clients—blackmail letters. There's a reason for not making them public just yet. He's a desperate man, Mrs. Winston, a dangerous man! My, how brave you were!"

"I—I'm not brave," gulped Dolly, and she laughed a rather shaky little laugh. "I'm not brave—but you are! You see, I was remembering Harry Holmes as he was at high school. Rather a stupid boy—a bully! But a good football player. It's a pity he's turned out so badly! A blackmailer!"

"A woman he's trying to blackmail, Mrs. Winston," continued the stenographer. "Trying to browbeat her out of money—contemptible. But we've got him now—we'll be able to prove that what he's written is untrue! And he knows it! We've got him—thanks to you, Mrs. Winston! Your husband will be proud to know how you have protected the interest of the firm today!"

"How absurd!" exclaimed Dolly, but her eyes glowed and she smiled up at the little stenographer. "You know I'm glad you said that about my helping the firm. I've always felt that you were so superior in your attitude to me—and I've resented it!"

"Oh!" the girl cried in astonishment. "That's just how I've felt about you!"

Dolly sighed, looked at her wistfully. "Now that we're friends," she said, "I wonder if I might ask a favor of you, Miss Moffitt, a really big favor?"

"Of course," replied Miss Moffitt. "Would you — would you mind coming out and staying tonight with me?" asked Dolly gravely. "You see," she explained, "I'm out there all alone and I'm dreadfully afraid in the dark!"

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY.

SEVERAL towns now have an ordinance which prohibits citizens from firing at raccoon coats. You never know who's liable to be inside of one of them.

A BOSTON man went trapping on Boylston street the other afternoon and caught three college boys.

WHILE all of the coats were occupied, two of them were practically vacant.

HE took a couple of them out to Franklin Park and turned the other one loose.

HE wanted to leave something for his companion to shoot at.

BUT this was unnecessary. His partner had been over to Commonwealth avenue and shot three of his own.

HE caught two of them in front of a jewelry store and bagged the third one on a bus.

HE only used a small rifle because he didn't want to spoil the fur.

HE skinned one and is going to keep the other two for pets.

BUT he finally changed his mind and sold all three of them to a taxidermist.

SOME of the specimens aren't so good, but it's lots of fun shooting them.

IT'S better to hunt raccoon coats when there's snow on the ground. It's easier to follow their tracks.

ONE man always uses ferrets to run them out of the subway.

HE lost a beautiful fur coat the other day when it jumped in a taxicab.

BUT he shot it the next night just as it was coming out of a lunch wagon.

LATER on he threw it back in the park because it was also 86 and wouldn't fit him.

HE decided to let it run loose for a couple of months and shoot it again next March.

THIS is open season for raccoon coats, and why should a man go to the woods to hunt when he can find all the game he wants right here in the city.

THE MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE---BY HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN never gets the full joy out of a love-affair—because the moment he fancies he has a girl "just where he wants her" he begins to wonder if he wants there.

It is no feat these days, to make a man want to kiss you, but, the only sure way to make him KEEP ON wanting to kiss you, is never to LET him! And, that's where the feat comes in!

When a man is looking for amusement he wants a girl who likes to go out and be entertained; but when he is looking for a wife, he wants one who can safely be left at home and forgotten, during business hours, golf-games and poker parties.

Nothing so shocks and annoys a man as to discover that a woman is actually being consistent!

Love no longer makes a man blind; but it still somewhat dazzles him so that he can see himself supporting a limousine-and-sables wife on a flivver-and-near-fur income.

Motor Industry's Future Here Pictured by Forbes

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—What is to be the future of the automobile industry? Has it almost reached its highest possible height, or will it go on growing and growing? Are we to see more companies or fewer competing? Can the number of automobile owners continue to multiply?

* * *

HERE IS my analysis of the future of the motor industry: There will be experienced a very great increase in the number of families owning two or more cars. Already many well-to-do use a large closed car for family and social purposes, and keep a small car for shopping purposes, for trips to and from the station, to be used by father and mother or growing children on Saturdays and Sundays or other days for sport or recreational purposes.

B. C. Forbes

In such families both parents usually can drive and, of course, so can youthful sons or daughters. Where there is only one car questions often arise as to which member of the family should get it when more than one want it. Many peace-loving papas are finding that the best solution is to buy a new low-priced car. As a matter of fact, the second car has been adjudged an economy by many families since the cost of running a small, light car is distinctly less than the cost of using a heavy closed car on any and every occasion.

It is rapidly becoming the rule in wealthy families for each member to have his or her own car. Were the records available publication of the number of American families owning three or more automobiles would astonish the public.

Demand from these sources—well-to-do and rich families—is bound to bring about very substantial expansion of the industry.

THE PRICE of automobiles promises to continue downward. Also, the purchasing power of wages in this country promises to continue upward. We are making such progress in developing economic mass production and the willingness the efficiency of the majority or our workers are becoming so much greater, and the genius of management is making such headway that as time goes on the ownership of at least a inexpensive car will come within the reach of more and more working-class families.

This, too, will contribute materially to the future expansion of the motor industry.

THE REST of the world will buy more motors as the ruin caused by the war is overcome. Last year we exported 650,000 cars. Some authorities in the industry estimate that the number exported during 1927 will not fall far short of 1,000,000. Whether that total be attained or not this year, expansion is certain to keep on broadening for years.

* * *

THE DEMAND for motor trucks should increase relatively more than the demand for passenger cars, because new uses are being found almost daily for commercial vehicles, particularly those costing little.

THE MOTOR BUS is only in its infancy. In no section of the motor field has there been such progress in the improvement of the product. The best motor busses today vie with high-class cars in the matter of comfort. This is bound to attract more and more customers for motor bus lines.

SCIENCE AND invention can be depended upon to find or invent ways and means of reducing and further improving the running all classes of gasoline-driven vehicles. This will make for their still wider use.

* * *

COMPETITION will inevitably be come keener and keener. The motor industry is destined to duplicate what has happened in the steel industry. Small concerns will either go to the wall or be absorbed by stronger organizations. There is no room for half-a-dozen important steel companies in the United States today. The motor industry promises to go through a similar evolution.

NARROW GAUGE POSITION IS INTERESTING

By FRANK H. MELOON

Financial Editor

Position of the Narrow Gauge today is most interesting to many thousands of Greater Boston patrons and investors. Note that there are very few narrow gauge lines in this country. I recall the one from Augusta, Me., to the great Soldiers Home at Togus was regarded as a curiosity when I rode it as much as twenty years ago.

Mayor Ralph S. Bauer of Lynn says: "Electrification of the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn is a road the Narrow Gauge and its absorption by the Boston Transit Commission is the most forward looking transportation arrangement in the North Shore Metropolitan Planning Board."

It would be interesting to know how Narrow Gauge stockholders as body view the proposed merger of a good paying road with one that holds, aside from State aid, a position not so good is the present disagreement of experts thought. The Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn R.R. Company was incorporated in 1874 under the laws of Massachusetts. It operates from East Boston to Lynn, and from East Boston to Winthrop, a distance of some 13 miles. Total trackage is slightly over 24 miles. The company has a funded indebtedness of only $1,000,000, followed by $450,000 of capital stock, $100 par. Dividends in recent years have been paid on the stock at the rate of 16 per annum. Early last month it was estimated that earnings for the year 1926 would more than cover the $6 dividend, with final figures topping 1925 results, when $6.14 a share was reported. In 1924 earnings were equivalent to $6.34, and in 1923 to $7.57.

First Assistant Postmaster-General John H. Bartlett, Democratic nominee of New Hampshire, sent me this one just before Christmas. It was sent him by a friend:

Bartlett

Webster explained his sense of humor that Daniel Webster refused to know a joke, lying perfectly still with eyes closed. At 2 o'clock, however, his half-opened eye saw the clock and the brandy, and he faintly said in a whisper: 'I still live.' There are other versions of this last words, but this one is certainly tenacious."

Big sign in the South Station announcer "It's Summer in Florida." I read it first, just after plowing through this week's blizzard. Within a few hours I had in hand a dispatch announcing it was 72 degrees above zero in Tallahassee, ten degrees colder than in Boston. As I write a brief message comes from my reader—Coral Gables Hall pool freezes over."

U. S. CAST Iron Pipe responded to rumors of a 6-for-1 split up.

Have You Seen Spattees?

They Are On These Ladies' Legs.

CHARMING GIRLHOOD WEARING "SPATTEES."

Men wear spats, contrivances made of cloth, with buttons on the sides, worn with low shoes to keep the ankles warm in Winter and to make you look solemn and British at all times.

British young women have taken to wearing SPATTEES, a sort of spats that come up high, keeping the legs warm in spite of short skirts and flimsy silk stockings.

This fashion is most successful, since it protects health, preserving warmth in the big blood vessels that run up and down the ankle.

Spattees should come to the United States.

Young ladies, get your spattees, and so much the better if you have them go above the knees and cover your poor little legs entirely when the north wind doth blow. Preserve your vitality. Keep your legs warm, ankles and knees well covered. Consumption is increasing among girls because they EAT too little and DRESS too little.

A Clean-Up Drive

Deep Down in His Spirit Every Healthy American Prefers Clean to Loose Living

One day's practise of the Christian principles a majority of our citizens profess to revere would, Bishop Manning told an audience of churchmen in New York, cause intemperance, loathsome plays, obscene magazines, prurient sex novels and bad housing to vanish.

The same results would, no doubt, follow an equally sincere and vigorous practise of the principles of the other religious faiths.

It is, therefore, gratifying that the bishops of the denomination to which Bishop Manning belongs are conducting a nation-wide crusade against the moral laxities in our American life.

Ills accumulate like dust and filth. The ordinary processes of house-cleaning need frequent reinforcement by special "clean-up" drives, and that is equally true in the field of conduct.

Deep down in his spirit every healthy American prefers clean to loose living; prefers to have his children brought up in a community where wholesomeness is not cynically flouted or encroached upon by progressive degeneration.

Hence, every sane citizen will applaud and, if morally courageous, aid the purpose of this Episcopal crusade.

"I Am on the Lord's Side"

The Rev. Carl May Be Wrong

The Reverend Carl C. Walker, of Joplin, Missouri, an evangelist and on the side a "faith healer," is disagreeably described by his wife who has divorced him.

But the Reverend Carl is not perturbed. "I am still on the good side of the Lord," says he, and he starts for the Holy Land to stay six months.

One advantage reverend gentlemen have had since old Egypt. They have special information as to what the Lord wants, and, possessing inside information, do not run the risk that some others run.

Of course, the Reverend Carl may be mistaken as to the Lord's attitude toward himself. The former Kaiser often said, "The Lord is on my side," and look what happened to him.

Land of Opportunity

Ten years ago Calvin Coolidge was not mentioned among the eminent Americans in "Who's Who." Neither was Al Smith, nor Governor Ritchie, nor Governor Donahey, of Ohio.

Harry M. Daugherty, the power behind the Harding administration, is about to face his second trial for conspiracy.

Ten years ago he also had not attracted sufficient attention to promote him into "Who's Who."

The man who now stands easily first among our dramatists, Eugene O'Neill, was not mentioned in the national book of biography. In fiction the creator of "Main Streeet" did not appear.

Taking one thing with another, time moves on.

Great Jews, but Not Rich

Samuel Gompers and Israel Zangwill were among the most important Jews of modern times. The one was head of American labor and confidant of Presidents. The other was a literary genius.

Did they die "rich as Jews"? Hardly.

In a day when novelists have steam yachts, Zangwill's estate amounts to $16,335. At a time when labor leaders own banks, Gompers left $30,000.

Jewish blood plus success does not, as many think, spell riches.

YESTERDAY'S GOOD IS TODAY'S EVIL

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ADVANCEMENT is not a giant stride; it is a flight of stairs.

The way we make progress is not by jumps, but by steps; not by going from evil to good, but by going from evil to lesser evil.

So the evil of today may be the discarded good of yesterday.

Slavery is an evil not countenanced in any civilized land today. Yet at one time it was good. It was a distinct moral advance over the old practice of murdering in cold blood all captives taken in warfare.

Prize fighting is looked upon as an evil now and almost all of the States have laws aimed to prevent it.

But a century ago prize fighting was a distinct advance over the brutality of the sports of former times. Even such a fight as one in 1825 when two men fought for 75 rounds with naked fists and the loser had to be put to bed with 50 leeches on him was a step up from the spectacles such as throwing ferocious dogs into a lions' cage and watching them tear each other to pieces which had delighted the people at a previous date.

Some of the superstitions which were connected with religion in the past are now evils and repel men of greater intelligence instead of frightening them into good conduct.

They are an evil now, but at one time for more primitive people whom they kept from doing wrong they were a good.

It is as true that the good of today may be the evil of tomorrow as it is that the evil of today was the good of the past.

The test of the times is not whether there are evils or not, but whether those evils are less or greater than the ones in the past; whether they are a step up or down.

Odds and Ends of the Town

BUSY.

ONE of the busiest men in New England is P. F. DOWD, of Holyoke. That is, his home and family of ten children is in HOLYOKE, but BOSTON, and MEXICO CITY and CENTRAL AMERICA are almost equally his home. As traffic manager of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts and of the Hampden and Hampshire Counties and Holyoke Traffic Associations, he has on his shoulders the cares of transportation problems of nearly 3,000 New England industries. Just at present DOWD is working hard on details of the trip of New England manufacturers to Cuba and Central America in March.

ROUND THE WORLD

President JOHN J. MARTIN of the EXCHANGE TRUST COMPANY, and MRS. MARTIN, are preparing for a world cruise that will start within the next few weeks. Last year they made a tour of the east and west coasts of South America, during which the banker made a study of commercial conditions in all the ports touched. He returned deeply impressed with the rapidly securing commercial possibilities and the chances which South America offers to young men for a career.

THERE.

"I'll be in the City Council chamber when the vote for president is taken if I have to be there on crutches," declared CITY COUNCILLOR THOMAS W. McMAHON of Ward 15, Dorchester. He was present and he was on crutches. Early in the evening previous to meeting day of the City Council, McMAHON, in stepping from an automobile, fractured his right ankle. His physician patched him up so as to enable him to make his appearance in the Council, after which the injured member was carefully placed in a plaster cast.

PERTURBED.

CITY MESSENGER NED LEARY and his official mace had a tough time of it Inauguration Day at CITY HALL. His strutted pompously securing MAYOR NICHOLS to the rostrum, where the latter delivered his address. Returning after the ceremony he found the doors locked against him. He banged and banged until admitted. The crowd in the gallery worried Ned by their demonstration when the members' vote was announced, so that he called for the police reserves from headquarters when he had already nine policemen near at hand. It is not very often that "Ned" wanders away from the even tenor of his way.

LONG, LONG AGO.

Enclosed in a glass case, with the model of the driver between the wheels, is a miniature hose reel of the type of apparatus used to extinguish fires in ROXBURY in 1766. It is on exhibition at 1339 Washington street, ROXBURY, in the headquarters of the ROXBURY VETERAN FIREMEN'S ASSOCIATION. The original members of the organization, the oldest of its kind in the city, have long since passed to their reward. The old-time firehats and curios on the walls and stored in desks are mute testimony of the happenings of other days.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

GRANDPA STERN has been looking at some of the books the youngsters received at Christmas and he doesn't think much of them.

"Weak, vicious stuff," that's how Grandpa Stern rates modern books for children.

"I don't believe," says he, "that most of our cussedness of the youngsters of today comes from reading this kind of tommyrot.

"Look at them!" he snorts, pointing to a pile of gaily colored volumes on the table. 'Fat little Peter Rabbit books and Mother West Wind Stories for the baby, 'merry ldr. Doolittle and Raggedy Ann for eight-year-old Martha and Jimmy the twins, Treasure Island and half a dozen other tales of high adventure for Steve and Mildred, the older children.

"Look at them," snorts Grandpa. "Not a real substantial, uplifting story in the lot. Not an ounce of spiritual instruction—just a lot of weak, sentimental, melodramatic TRASH. How's a youngster going to grow into a respectable, law-abiding citizen reading stuff like that? Now when I was a boy—"

When Grandpa was a boy children's books were few and far between. But such as existed were certainly Strong Meat for babes. No fly-by-night fiction for that sturdy generation. Great-grandpa had cut his teeth on those books and his papa before him. They were the boiled down literary extract of Puritan ideals and morals. Dr. Terman and Margaret Lima in their book "Children's Reading," tell about those rock-ribbed masterpieces.

Old-Time Museum.

Here is the advertisement published in 1750:

"A MUSEUM FOR YOUNG GENTLEMEN AND LADIES

A Private Tutor for Masters and Misses, containing a variety of useful Subjects, and in particular,

Directions for reading with elequence and propriety . . . An account of the solar system . . .

Rules for Behavior . . . The Seven Wonders of the World . . . Dying words and behavior of great Men, when just quitting the stage of life, with many other useful particulars, all in a plain familiar Way for Youth of Both Sexes . . . All interspersed with Letters, Tales and Fables, for Amusement and instruction, and illustrated with Cuts."

This would seem heavy enough fodder for any juvenile reader, but the good American father and mother loked upon even this with suspicion as being far too frivolous!

A book favored by the founders of this country was entitled "Last Words and Dying Expressions of Hannah Hill, Aged Eleven Years and near Nine Months."

Gradually the "dying words" grew less in juvenile literature, but the Moral Element stoutly held its own until comparatively recent years. Always there was the Good Child and the Bad Child—and always they got what was coming to them with a wealth of detail.

Then at last an unregenerate world broke away from golden harps and hell fires for the young and began to tell stories that were stories. Stories of sweet wholesome youth such as Louisa Alcott wrote. Stories of high adventure and gallant daring such as the indomitable soul of the dying Stevenson created. Stories like that flashed across young lives like gay flags and shining blades.

Spiritual Instruction.

And now Grandpa snorts and wonders what the world is coming to when there isn't an ounce of "spiritual instruction" in the books of modern youth.

A good many other old folks are snorting with Grandpa. They object not only to modern books but to the whole scheme of modern education. The games, the teaching which often seems to take the form of a game, the school dramatics, all the colorful, diverting program of instruction. They feel that this program needs some leavening of gravity to offset its seeming lightness—we should have Bibles in schools, regular religious instruction—else how will our children attain any spiritual insight?

They're sincere, these good folks, but aren't they, in their zeal, actually overlooking some excellent spiritual instruction? What instruction can be more spiritual than that which teaches a boy or girl to live generously and nobly, finding and giving joy in the common acts of life, despising grossness and falsity because of their inherent cheapness, reaching out and up to the brave, clean, manly things? And that is what the bright books of adventure do give little Jimmy and Martha and Edith and Steve. Not the art of "dying piously," as was once the wont of juvenile books, but the art of living gallantly. What finer training could there be for Christian citizenship?

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

'Tis impious in a good man to be sad.—Young.

We rise in glory as we sink in pride.—Young.

"Impossible"—let me never hear that foolish word again.—Mirabeau.

I wanted time, now doth time waste me.—Shakespeare.

To see the world is to judge the judges.—Joubert.

We imitate only what we believe and admire.—Whipple.

Lightning in the Forest

By Garrett P. Serviss.

IF YOU make long automobile journeys, or if, on short ones, you stop for a picnic in some pleasant roadside grove; or if you go camping in the big woods you need, for your country's sake as well as your own, to become acquainted with a new use of the word "duff," together with the nature and possibilities of the thing that the word stands for.

"Duff," in the vocabulary of the forest fires service, means "the thin film of matted leaves or needles in which we started the little fires that make the big ones."

In a word, it is the carpet of the woods, and thousands of citizens who would never be guilty of dropping a match on a rug in anybody's house, will nonchalantly, thoughtlessly, sometimes even defiantly, fling lighted matches or even brands from a campfire, on the inflammable floor of the woods, thereby starting conflagrations which may destroy hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of timber—when timber is becoming scarce—and form ugly cicatrices in the midst of beautiful landscapes.

The forest fire fighters have found that an index of the fire-hazard for any particular time is furnished by the relative humidity of the atmosphere. When that is low, the hazard is increased, when it is high the fire danger is lessened, the reason being that low air humidity means dry "duff" and high humidity moist "duff."

So, they have come to recognize what is called "forest-fire weather," during which the "duff" becomes dry and inflammable.

But an even greater source of danger in forest-fire weather than careless campers, picnickers, and smokers, is lightning. A single thunderstorm may start many fires at once in a large forest.

On July 13 last, lightning storms started ninety-seven fires in the Kaniksu forest between Idaho and Washington.

In the aggregate more than 400 square miles were burned over in the national forest region in Idaho, Montana, Washington, Oregon and California last Summer, and the majority of the fires were caused by lightning.

Another odd term appears in connection with fire-fighting in the forest—"dry lightning." A great number of the Western fires this year were ascribed to dry lightning, which means lightning that occurs without, or almost without, rain.

How this can happen has been explained by C. F. Talman of the Weather Bureau. In an ordinary "wet thunderstorm" it rains for hours at a comparatively low level, while the air between the clouds and the ground is sufficiently humid to prevent any great evaporation of the rain before it reaches the earth.

But when the lower air is relatively very dry while the rain forms high up, the raindrops are evaporated in the zone of dry air before reaching the ground. So it may roar and thunder aloft and lightning may strike down to the earth, though no rain comes along with it. But just beneath the clouds, says Dr. Talman, all thunderstorms are equally wet.

The Forest Fire Service is a very picturesque division of the Federal Government. You will find its stations and its watchers on many commanding peaks.
